Introduction

The Prophet Muhammad ﷺ established the first Islamic State in Medina with a distinct structure (ajhizaat) that continued with its main pillars until 1924. Although the styles (usloob) and means (waseelah) related to each of the institutions evolved over time, the hukm (rule) remained fixed. In the beginning the Prophet ﷺ took charge of most of these ajhizaat himself. As the state expanded, he ﷺ assigned different sahaba to specific roles.

The main elements (jihaz) of this structure must be implemented because they form a fixed method (tareeqa) and not simply optional subsidiary rules or styles (usloob) which change according to the circumstances.

As with all Islamic rules the general rules are specified in the Holy Qur'an and elaborated in the sunnah through the actions, sayings and silence of the Messenger ﷺ. Allah (Most High) says,

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِي رَسُولِ اللَّهِ أُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ لِّمَن

كَانَ يَرْجُو اللَّهَ وَالْيَوْمَ الْآخِرَ وَذَكَرَ اللَّهَ كَثِيرًا

You have an excellent model in the Messenger of Allah, for all who put their hope in Allah and the Last Day and remember Allah much.¹

No value should be given to the words of Ali Abd ar-Raziq who was excommunicated from Al-Azhar for his claim in 1925 that, "God has left the field of civil government and worldly interests for the exercise of human reason."² Nor should value be given to modern day academics who make claims outside the well-established methodology of ijtihad and usul ul-fiqh, which clearly contradict the sunnah such as Abdelwahab El-Affendi who says, "the political authority which the Prophet established was a voluntary association,"³ and "sharia can never be imposed."⁴

After the death of the Prophet ﷺ the rightly guided Caliphs continued implementing this structure. Then after them the Umayyads, Abbasids and finally Ottomans all implemented Islam and the main pillars of the state until the abolition of the Caliphate in 1924.

As the state expanded and the complexities of ruling increased, various styles and means related to each institution were created. For example, the hukm in Islam is that the currency of the state must be gold and silver. In the beginning the Islamic State didn't mint its own currency but used existing gold and silver coins (dinars and dirhams). It was during the Caliphate of Umar bin Al-Khattab that the state first minted its own coins. Similar examples can be seen throughout the institutions of the Islamic State.

There are a multitude of history books on Islam, the life of the Prophet ﷺ and the Islamic State. This book is not intended to repeat what has already been elaborated upon by the great scholars of Islam. Its purpose is simply to detail the insitutions of the state during the different periods of Islamic history. It is hoped this will become a reference guide showing Muslims that this unique institution of the Caliphate (Khilafah) is not a theory based in books but was a practical reality for 1300 years.

This book is split in to a number of volumes each covering one aspect of the Islamic State’s history. The first volume deals with the Prophet ﷺ who established the first Islamic State in Medina and the Rightly Guided Caliphs after him. The Prophet ﷺ said, “The Khilafah in my Ummah will be for thirty years. Then there will be Mulk (kingdom) after that.”⁶

Allowance

The Khums (the fifth) of the war booty. This fifth used to be, in the lifetime of the Messenger of Allah ﷺ, divided into five shares: one share to Allah and the Messenger ﷺ, another for the family of the Messenger ﷺ, and the other three to the orphans, the needy and the wayfarers.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ used to spend his own share of the Khums on the Muslims and on Jihad in the way of Allah where he would buy camels, horses and weapons, and he would also equip the fighters. It has been reported that when he ﷺ returned from Hunayn, he lifted a camel's hair and held it aloft in his fingers saying: "I have nothing from that which Allah bestowed upon you even this hair except a fifth of your booty and the fifth I will return to you."⁷

3. Bay'ah Contract

The bay'ah is a ruling contract which governs the relationship between Muslims and the Islamic state. The messenger ﷺ established this method by taking a bay'ah from the Ansar at the second bay'ah of Al-Aqaba. This bay'ah was taken from Muslims who were already obliged to obey the Messenger ﷺ by their belief. This shows that the bay'ah was not on belief but on ruling and the condition of obeying the messenger in the bay'ah was in his capacity as a ruler not a prophet.

5. The Treasury

The State Treasury (Bait ul-Mal) had no fixed location during the time of the Prophet ﷺ. Funds were spread in the mosque or stored in his ﷺ wives' houses. As time moved on and the state funds poured in, the location of the Bait ul-Mal changed to a fixed location. In the time of Abu Bakr, he assigned a house in Al-Sanh with a lock and guard. During the time of the Umayyads the funds were stored in the Umayyad Mosque in Damascus on a raised platform only accessible by ladder. This is similar to all institutions (ajhizat) where the hukm remains fixed and the technological advancements (styles and means) evolve over time.

Although the individuals below are listed as tax collectors notably of zakat and jizya or both, it can be argued that in reality many were actually in charge of all treasury functions for the area they were sent to. This would make them regional treasury heads (wali ul-Kharaj).

Health⁵³

- The Prophet ﷺ was given a doctor as a gift but made him available for all the Muslims.

Transportation⁵⁴

- The Prophet ﷺ organised the roads at his time by making the road seven arms width in case of a dispute.

Irrigation⁵⁵

- Rules of irrigation were established. The Ushr (tenth) agricultural tax is halved (twentieth) when land is artificially irrigated.

Population Census of Medina⁵⁶

- On entering Medina, a census was conducted to determine the number of available Muslim fighters for the army. The number was 1500.

Ahl-Suffah Welfare (housing and feeding the poor)⁵⁷

- The Prophet ﷺ created a section of Masjid An-Nabawi for housing the poor and needy.

6.4 Education

The Prophet Muhammad ﷺ was the main teacher of the sahaba. The sahaba then implemented this knowledge practically in their lives and passed on their knowledge to others. This is based on the verse of the Holy Qur'an:

وَمَا كَانَ الْمُؤْمِنُونَ لِيَنْفِرُوا كَافَّةً ۚ فَلَوْلَا نَفَرَ
مِنْ كُلِّ فِرْقَةٍ مِّنْهُمْ طَائِفَةٌ لِّيَتَفَقَّهُوا فِي الدِّينِ
وَلِيُنذِرُوا قَوْمَهُمْ إِذَا رَجَعُوا إِلَيْهِمْ لَعَلَّهُمْ
يَحْذَرُونَ

“Yet it is not right for all the believers to go out [to battle] together: out of each community, a group should go out to gain understanding of the religion, so that they can teach their people when they return and so that they can guard themselves against evil.”⁶⁸

7.2 Foreign Affairs

The primary mission of these envoys was to call the leaders to Islam. The Prophet ﷺ would send them with a letter containing his seal and ask the envoy to deliver it personally to the foreign ruler. This was a dangerous mission but these diplomats carried it out with great courage and eloquence in delivering the message.

- Prophet Muhammad ﷺ

Established a new marketplace in Medina

A man from the Ansar came to the Prophet ﷺ begging, so the Prophet ﷺ asked him to bring the goods he owned which was a blanket and a drinking bowl. He ﷺ then sold them for two dirhams (silver coins). The Prophet ﷺ told the man to buy food with one dirham and an axe with the other. He ﷺ then told the man to take the axe and gather firewood saying, "I don't want to see you for fifteen days". The Ansari went and gathered firewood, sold it and came back. He had earned a profit of 10 dirhams. In this way the Prophet ﷺ directly facilitated business and economic activity in Medina.¹⁰⁴

8.1 Flags and banners

If we look to the hadith we find two types of flags were used by the Prophet ﷺ and commanders of the Islamic army. They are the white liwaa' (اللواء) and the black rayah (الراية) which are translated as flags or banners.

عَنْ جَابِرٍ، رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُ أَنَّ النَّبِيَّ صَلَّى اللَّهُ

عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ دَخَلَ مَكَّةَ وَلِوَاؤُهُ أَبْيَضُ

It is narrated from Jabir that the Prophet ﷺ entered Makkah with his white *liwaa'*¹⁶³

لَأُعْطِينَ الرَّايَةَ الْيَوْمَ رَجُلًا يُحِبُّ اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ

The Prophet ﷺ said: "I will give the rayah today to a man (Imam Ali) who loves Allah and His Messenger."¹⁶⁴

Al-Qamus al-Muhit dictionary mentions the linguistic meaning of both the liwaa' and rayah as 'alam (العلم) which means a sign or banner.

If no further description of the liwaa' and rayah was found in the hadith then we could adopt any type of flag we wanted as long as it contained Islamic symbolism such as the crescent and star used by the Ottomans. However, if we look to the hadith we find detailed descriptions of both the liwaa' and the rayah which means these words transfer from their linguistic meaning of a general sign, to a sharia meaning with a specific description.

During the Battle of Uhud, Musab ibn Umair was the flag bearer of the liwaa' which he kept aloft until he was martyred.

What is the difference between the liwaa' and the rayah?

The liwaa' is a specific flag used as a sign for the Corp Commanders (Lt. General), or commander in-chief (Caliph), whereas the rayah is used by the entire armed forces and by extension through qiyas, the entire population of the state. The rayah is flown during the battle, and if the commander in-chief (Caliph) is also fighting then the liwaa' will be flown alongside the rayah. This is based on the battles led by the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ who was commander in-chief, like Badr and Uhud. As mentioned Musab ibn Umair was the flag bearer of the liwaa' at Uhud. This can also be seen in the battles during the Khulufa' Rashida (Rightly Guided Caliphs).

At the Battle of Siffin, the Caliph Ali ibn Abi Talib directly led the battle and so both the liwa' and rayah were flown. Ali assigned Muhammad ibn al-Hanafiyyah to carry the liwa' and Hisham ibn 'Utbah to carry the rayah.¹⁶⁵

9. Map of the state

10. Provinces (Wiliyaat)

The vast territories which the Islamic State rules over are divided up in to administrative units to ease in the task of ruling.

The top-level division is The Province (Wiliyah) which is headed by a Governor (Waaali).

The Province is divided in to Districts (I'maala) which are headed by an 'Amil or Hakim. The District is sub-divided in to Cities (Qasabah) headed by a Chief Executive (Mudeer).

The City is further divided in to Neighbourhoods or Quarters (Hayy) each headed by a Director (Mudeer).¹⁶⁶

Traditionally a Neighbourhood consisted of 40 houses.

11. Spread of Islam

The foreign policy of the Caliphate is to carry Islam to the world through daw'ah and jihad. The objective of offensive jihad is not to kill people, but rather to make Allah's word the highest in the land it liberates by removing the physical obstacles to people seeing the truth of Islam.

The Caliphate is not allowed to force any non-Muslim to abandon his/her belief. Rather the non-Muslims should accept Islam after being intellectually convinced. Allah (Most High) says:

لا إِكْرَاهَ فِي الدِّينِ

"There is no compulsion in religion"

190

Actions speak louder than words so once non-Muslims live under the shade of the Caliphate and witness its high values, they freely convert to the ideology of the state which is Islam. Allah (Most High) says:

إِذَا جَاءَ نَصْرُ اللَّهِ وَالْفَتْحُ

وَرَأَيْتَ النَّاسَ يَدْخُلُونَ فِي دِينِ اللَّهِ أَفْوَاجًا

فَسَبِّحْ بِحَمْدِ رَبِّكَ وَاسْتَغْفِرْهُ ۗ إِنَّهُ كَانَ تَوَّابًا

"When Allah's help and victory have arrived and you have seen people entering Allah's deen in droves, then glorify your Lord's praise and ask His forgiveness. He is the Ever-Returning." ¹⁹¹

Islam could never have expanded so quickly if the conquered people had not embraced Islam, and then joined the army and carried Islam further. Yemen was opened to Islam during the time of the Prophet ﷺ and after the Ridda wars, Abu Bakr requested the tribes of Yemen to take part in the Ash-Sham campaign which they readily accepted in their thousands. Their slogan became, "O helpers of Allah".¹⁹²

2. Biography

After the Prophet ﷺ died the Muslim ummah faced a huge number of problems which were only addressed and resolved once Abu Bakr was chosen as Caliph.

Aishah said: “When the Messenger of Allah ﷺ died, all Arabs apostatized, and hypocrisy appeared everywhere. By Allah, what descended upon my father was such (i.e. was so severe) that, if it were to descend upon firm and unshakeable mountains, it would have crushed them.” ²⁸⁸

2.1 The Caliph's Age

During the Rightly Guided Caliphate all the Caliphs were selected freely by those who represented the opinion of the Muslims. They were given the Bay'ah (Pledge of Allegiance) on the basis of meritocracy and each of them had huge political experience. Abu Bakr, Umar, Uthman and Ali had all held the position of Wazir (Delegated Assistant) which is the highest government position after the Caliph. When we look to their ages we see they were all elder statesman, excluding Hasan who was a caretaker Caliph during the civil war.

If we compare this to when the Bay'ah was misapplied and became confined to ruling dynasties as happened after Muawiyah we find a stark contrast in the ages of the Caliphs. This is a characteristic of hereditary rule where the ruler is chosen not on meritocracy but by position in the family. This is why we find instances of very young Caliphs in certain periods of the Caliphate.

3. Bay'ah Contract

The bay'ah is a ruling contract which governs the relationship between Muslims and the Islamic state. For those Muslims living under the authority of the Caliph the bay'ah is their citizenship contract with the state. Unlike most Islamic contracts which are one-to-one such as buying, selling, and marriage, the bay'ah is one-to-millions i.e. between the Caliph and the Muslim ummah. This poses a challenge on how you get the free choice and consent of millions of people which is a condition in Islamic contracts.

Historically in the rightly guided Caliphate of the sahaba, the senior representatives of the people would contract the bay'ah to the Caliph. The rest of the Muslims would accept their opinion and rush to pledge their bay'ah of obedience to the newly appointed Caliph directly in the Prophet's mosque in Medina which was the capital of the state, or indirectly through the governors in the other provinces.²⁹⁵ The classical fiqh books called this contracting group Ahl hali wal-aqd. Sallaabee states: *"The inhabitants of Al-Madeenah pledged allegiance to him and placed their hands on his hand; meanwhile, the inhabitants of Makkah and At-Taaif made their pledges to Abu Bakr's governors."*²⁹⁶

Prophet ﷺ died midday Monday

Bay'ah contract was concluded Monday afternoon.

Bay'ah of Obedience

Bay'ah of obedience was completed Tuesday Dhuhr after which the Prophet's ﷺ burial preparations commenced.

Ibn Kathir mentions: "...that they only began preparing him ﷺ for burial after completion of the bay'ah made to Abu Bakr (ra)." ²⁹⁷

Muslims of Medina gave Bay'ah directly to Abu Bakr in the Masjid whereas the provinces gave Bay'ah via their governor.

Time without a Caliph

24 hours.

When Sa'eed ibn Zaid was asked, "When was Abu Bakr confirmed by the people?" He said, "The day on which the Messenger of Allah died; they disliked for even a part of a day to pass by without them being united as a group (with a leader to rule over them)." ²⁹⁸

3.1 Delaying the burial of the Prophet ﷺ

The Prophet ﷺ burial was delayed until after Abu Bakr had received the bay'ah of obedience from the Muslims of Medina, capital of the Caliphate. Ibn Katheer states, “What is famously related from the majority of scholars is that the Prophet ﷺ died on Monday and was buried on Tuesday night.” ²⁹⁹

This is ijma as-sahaba (consensus of the companions) that the shar'a prioritises the obligation of appointing a Caliph over that of burying the dead even though both are fard al-kifiya (collective obligations). The appointment of a Caliph is at the top of the collective obligations because so many other obligations are dependent on this. Until Abu Bakr was appointed Caliph the ummah was paralysed and in disarray.

4. Government Structure

As mentioned earlier Ali Abd ar-Raziq said in 1925 that, "God has left the field of civil government and worldly interests for the exercise of human reason" which he follows with "The first Caliph, Abu Bakr, was invested with what was essentially a political and royal power based on force."³⁰⁰

The structure implemented by Abu Bakr follows what was implemented by the Prophet ﷺ. This continuity of ruling in terms of the ajhizaat shows the Caliphate has a fixed structure and is not based on the whims and desires of the sahaba who are far above such claims.

4.1 The title of Caliph

Abu Bakr was given the title Caliph/Khaleefah (successor) of the Messenger of Allah ﷺ. This title is mentioned numerous times in the hadith. Marwadi states: "He is called the Khaleefah (successor) as he stands in for the Messenger of Allah at the head of his Ummah and so it is permitted for someone to say, "O, Khaleefah of the Messenger of Allah!" or for someone to say, "Khaleefah," on its own."³⁰⁷

4.2 Caliph's salary

Abu Bakr had spent all his wealth in the path of Allah over the decades so couldn't afford to support his large family when he became Caliph. Initially he worked as a businessman in the marketplace until the senior sahaba, people of shura agreed to assign him an allowance from the treasury so he could concentrate solely on running the state. This allowance is how future Caliphs were paid, although in the period of dynasties this was abused by some rulers who took far more than they needed to fund lavish lifestyles.

It is related that, shortly after he was appointed Khaleefah, Abu Bakr could be seen heading towards the marketplace, carrying a bundle of garments which he intended to sell.

Umar and Abu Ubaydah accosted him and said, "Where are you going Khaleefah of the Messenger of Allah?" Abu Bakr replied, "The marketplace." They said, "To do what? You have been put in charge over the affairs of the Muslims!" Abu Bakr said, "Then how will I feed my family?" They said, "Come with us, and we will allot for you a stipend.” ³⁰⁸

The initial stipend was 250 dinars a year and part of a sheep each day. This was not enough for Abu Bakr’s large family so was increased to 300 dinars a year and a whole sheep per day. Abu Bakr went to the Masjid and ascended the minbar (pulpit) and said, “O People, my salary was 250

dinars in addition to parts of a sheep that were taken from its stomach, its head and its feet. But now Umar and Ali have agreed to increase my salary to 300 dinars in addition to a sheep in its entirety. Does this arrangement satisfy you?” The Muhajiroon replied, “Yes, we are pleased”. ³⁰⁹

Please note that although 300 dinars in today’s money is £46K this doesn’t give a true picture of its value. Rather what needs to be investigated is the buying power of a dinar in Abu Bakr’s time. Taking this in to account 300 dinars was not an excessive amount but just enough to fulfil the Caliph’s expenses.

4.3 Accountability

Abu Bakr’s first speech as Caliph made clear that accountability is an essential element of the Caliphate which the ummah must undertake. No one is above the law in the state. Abu Bakr said, “If I do well then obey me, and if I act wrongly, then correct me.” ³¹⁰

5. The Army

5.1 Ridda wars – Quelling internal rebellion³¹⁵

Most of the Arab Peninsula rebelled after the death of the Prophet ﷺ except the major cities of Makkah, Medina and Taif. The reasons for rebellion were numerous. Some refused to pay taxes to the state and some followed one of the four false prophets that had emerged. Many of the tribes followed these false prophets out of political expediency rather than religious conviction.

The four false prophets were:

- Musaylama the Liar in Yamamah
- Al-Aswad Al-Ansi in Yemen
- Sajah bint Al-Harith
- Tulayha al-Asadi

Abu Bakr as Commander in Chief of the army created 11 Corps and sent them out to deal with the rebellion. This became known as the Ridda Wars. It should be noted that the method of dealing with those who rebel as groups is not to punish them or wipe them out, rather they are fought until they re-join the Islamic State and give their bay'ah. Once the rebel armies were defeated they re-joined the Islamic State and their armies played a pivotal role in spreading Islam to Iraq, Ash-Sham and beyond under Umar bin al-Khattab.

5.2 Two of the four false prophets become Muslim Musaylama the Liar and Al-Aswad Al-Ansi were both killed but Tulayha al-Asadi and Sajah bint Al-Harith became Muslim. Tulayha who was an effective military commander, and his tribe played a pivotal role in the spreading of Islam in Persia. He died shaheed at the Battle of Nahavand located in present day Iran. This shows that forgiveness is open for all and those with skills can play a central role in the Islamic State.

5.3 Internal Security

Internal Security is normally managed by the police. In the case of an internal rebellion then the army will step in to quell the unrest. This is what occurred during the first year of Abu Bakr's rule where many areas of the state rebelled and armies were dispatched to them so they would reaffirm their bay'ah and loyalty to the state.

Abu Bakr was the Commander in-Chief but also took on the responsibility of Amir ul-Jihad during the Ridda Wars. This is common during civil wars where the leader takes a more active, hands-on role. This was the case with Ali bin Abi Talib when he was Caliph, and also Abraham Lincoln did the same during the American civil war³¹⁶.

5.4 The Army

the Amir ul-Jihad and the army generals. He assigns their missions and is in regular communication with the front line.

8.2 Army of Usama³⁴²

Just before the Prophet ﷺ passed away he ﷺ organised an army of 3000 men commanded by the teenager Usama bin Zaid, son of the great commander Zaid bin Harithah who died shaheed at Muthah. He ﷺ said: “Go to where your father was killed and trample them (the enemy) down with your horses; for indeed, I have placed you in charge of this army.”³⁴³

Once the Prophet ﷺ died and mass rebellion struck, the majority of the senior sahaba who were the people of shura wanted Usama’s army to be brought back to Medina to defend the state and deal with the rebels. Abu Bakr refused to accept the majority opinion and made the decision to send the army out of the state to the Byzantine empire in Ash-Sham. He even refused to replace Usama with an older and more experienced commander despite the majority requesting this.

Abu Bakr showed that in military matters and foreign policy it is not binding on the Caliph to accept the majority opinion from the people of shura and even his own wazir Umar ibn al-Khattab. What matters in these areas is the correct decision and not majority opinion. Similarly in matters of ijtihad no weight is given to majority opinion. Abu Bakr was following an ijtihad that the Prophet ﷺ had organised this army so he wasn’t going to change it.

This incident showed that the best defense is offense. Haraql, the Byzantine Emperor, learned in a single message both about the death of the Messenger of Allah ﷺ and the arrival of Usaamah's army. The Romans, shocked at the sheer audacity of the attack on their lands, exclaimed, “What is the matter with them? Their companion dies and then they attack our land?”

The Arabs in the region said, “If they were not powerful, they would not have sent this army (against us).” Thus the Arab Christians and Romans of the region were made to believe that the Muslims were quite powerful, when in fact Abu Bakr and the rest of the Muslims were struggling to regain control of the Arabian Peninsula.

It also shows that the duty of expanding the Islamic State and spreading Islam was not neglected despite widespread internal rebellion and weakness.³⁴⁴

8.3 Ash-Sham Campaign³⁴⁵

Abu Ubaydah was the temporary Amir ul-Jihad for the Ash-Sham Campaign until Khalid bin Walid was appointed by Abu Bakr after completing his mission in Iraq. During the Caliphate of Umar bin Al-Khattab, he dismissed Khalid bin Walid and reappointed Abu Ubaydah. This is the right of the Commander in Chief to organise the army as he sees fit.

9. Infrastructure Development

9.1 Compiling the Qur'an

During the Ridda Wars many hufaaaz (memorisers of the Qur'an) were killed. This led Abu Bakr's wazir Umar ibn Al-Khattab to advise the Caliph to preserve the Qur'an as Allah ordered and start compiling the Qur'an.

Shortly after the Battle of Yamaamah took place, Abu Bakr As-Siddeeq summoned for Zaid ibn Thaabit Al-Ansaari (his executive assistant) to come to him. When Zaid went to Abu Bakr, he saw 'Umar sitting down beside him. Abu Bakr then said to Zaid, "Verily, Umar came to me and said, 'Many of the Qurr'aa (those that had the Qur'an memorized in its entirety) have died on the Day of Yamaamah, and I fear that many other Qurr'aa will die in future battles and conflicts, and the dangerous result of that will be the loss of much of the Qur'an. Therefore, I think that you should order someone (or some committee of people) to gather the Qur'an (from what is written of it on leather parchments and bones, and from what is preserved in the hearts of men).'"³⁵⁰

Abu Bakr used the organs and resources of the state to compile the Qur'an and thus protect it as Allah (Most High) says:

إِنَّا نَحْنُ نَزَّلْنَا الذِّكْرَ وَإِنَّا لَهُ لَحَافِظُونَ

"It is We Who have sent down the Reminder (Qur'an) and We Who will preserve it."³⁵¹

The sahaba understood clearly the concept of Al-Qadaa wal-Qadr (divine fate and destiny) and what their responsibilities were in the spheres of life under their control. They therefore maximised their efforts in all areas of life whether in fighting battles, protecting the Qur'an or reunifying the state. The Islamic State is a human state ruled by human beings. Problems are solved by human beings implementing Islamic law (sharia) and not by divine intervention.

9.2 Nominating the next Caliph

When Abu Bakr fell seriously ill and was near death, he requested the Muslims of the capital Medina to choose the next Caliph. Due to Abu Bakr's high status in society and Islam they instead requested Abu Bakr choose the next Caliph. Abu Bakr then took shura from the senior sahaba on who his successor should be and finally came to the decision that Umar ibn Al-Khattab was most suited for the role. Abu Bakr did not choose a relative as a successor as happens in a monarchy rather he chose based on merit.

The sahaba said: "O Khaleefah of the Messenger Allah, your opinion is our opinion (i.e., appoint your successor for us)." He said, "Then give me some time, so that I can see what is best in the view of Allah and what is best for His religion and His slaves." ³⁵²

After a period of consultation Abu Bakr then ordered the following decree to be written:

In the Name of Allah, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful.

This is the (final) command of Abu Bakr ibn Abu Quhaafah, which he writes as he is exiting this world, and entering the world of the Hereafter ... a time during which a disbeliever comes to believe, a wicked-doer comes to have faith, and a liar tells the truth: Verily, I appoint over you 'Umar ibn Al-Khattaab as my successor, so listen to him and obey him If he acts justly, then that is what I think of him and that is what I know about him. But if he changes for the worse (i.e., he begins to act unjustly), then for each person is that which he has earned. Goodness is what I wanted, and I do not know anything of the Unseen world.

وَسَيَعْلَمُ الَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا أَيَّ مُنْقَلَبٍ يَنْقَلِبُونَ

"Those who do wrong will soon know the kind of reversal they will receive!" (Ash-Shu'araa, 26:227) ³⁵³

9.3 Sowing the seeds for future conquests and infrastructure development

Abu Bakr's Caliphate only lasted two years yet he sowed the seeds for future Caliphs to expand the state and spread Islam. If Abu Bakr hadn't resolved the disunity and crushed the rebellion then all aspects of Islam would have been threatened. This is why Abu Hurairah said: "By the One Whom there is no god but him, if Abu Bakr had not been appointed as Caliph then Allah would not have been worshipped." ³⁵⁴

These seeds can be seen flowering under Abu Bakr's successor Umar bin Al-Khattab who spread Islam far and wide, established new cities and built the state infrastructure.

4.1 The Caliph's title: Amir ul-Mu'mineen (leader of the believers)

Umar said: "You are the believers and I am your leader," so he gave this title (Amir ul-Mu'mineen) to himself.³⁷⁰

It's important to note that you don't need to be explicitly called a Caliph to be a Caliph. Umar bin al-Khattab was called Amir ul-Mu'mineen but he was also a Caliph. In history many of the Caliphs in different periods were called Kings and Sultans. Today we even have a group that has usurped this honourable title yet they are far from being legally considered a Caliphate.

In the book Nizam ul-Hukm fil-Islam it states: "With regards to his title, it could be the Khaleefah [Caliph], or the Imam or the Ameer of the believers...It is not obligatory to adhere to these three titles, rather it is allowed to give whoever takes charge of the Muslims' affairs other titles."³⁷¹

Ibn Taymiyyah said: *"Scholars have agreed that Muawiya is the best of this ummah's kings, for the four who were before him were Caliphs of Nubuwa, and he was the first of kings. His rule was that of mercy."*³⁷²

Muawiya was called a Malik (King) because he did some mazlama (oppression) but he was still legally a Caliph because Al-Mulk is a synonym of Al-Hukm which was used interchangeably in Islamic history. The people at the time of Umar understood the title Malik in the sense of a ruler committing injustice. Umar said: "By Allah, I do not know if I am a caliph or a king. If I am a king this is a serious matter." Someone said to him: "There is a difference between them. A caliph does not take anything except rightfully, and he does not give anything except rightfully, and you – praise be to Allah – are like that. A king oppresses the people, taking from one and giving to another." And 'Umar fell silent.³⁷³

5.1 The Caliph is responsible for the state budget

One of the mandatory powers of the Caliph is: *"It is he who adopts the divine rules, in the light of which the State's budget is drafted, and he who decides the details of the budget and the funds allocated to each department, whether concerning revenues or expenses."*³⁸⁵

All revenues and expenditure within the state is conducted according to the sharia, and the Caliph has no say in this since his executive power is restricted by the sharia. In terms of dividing the funds of the state, with the exception of Zakah which is fixed to eight categories, the Caliph can spend on the areas of the state according to his ijtihad. Umar summed this up when he said: "Allah has made me the keeper of this wealth, and the divider thereof." Then he said: "Rather Allah has decided how it is to be divided."³⁸⁶

5.2 Organising the Treasury accounts (Diwan)

Abu Hurayrah (governor of Bahrain) said that "I came from al-Bahrain with five hundred thousand dirhams and I went to 'Umar ibn al-Khattab, who asked me about the people and I told him. Then he asked me, 'What have you brought?' I said, 'I have brought five hundred thousand dirhams.' He said, 'Woe to you! Do you know what you are saying?' I said, 'Yes, a hundred thousand, and a hundred thousand, and a hundred thousand, and a hundred thousand, and a hundred thousand.' He said, 'You must be tired, go back to your family and sleep, and come to me in the morning.' The next morning, I went to him and he again asked, 'What have you brought?' I said, 'I have brought five hundred thousand dirhams' He said, 'Woe to you! Do you know what you are saying?' I said, 'Yes, a hundred thousand...' and I counted it five times on my fingers. He said, 'Are you sure?' I said, 'I do not know anything other than that.'

Umar ascended the minbar and praised and glorified Allah, then he said, 'O' people, a great deal of wealth has come to us. If you wish, we will give it to you by measure, or if you wish we will count it out for you.' A man stood up and said, 'O' Ameer al-Mu 'mineen, I think that these Persians keep records for themselves.' Umar liked the idea, so he consulted the Muslims about keeping records.³⁸⁷

Technology and administration (madaniyah) can be adopted from any civilisation as long there is no text explicitly forbidding it.

5.3 Establishing Kharaj tax revenues for future generations and abolishing the feudal system

The Kharaj is an arable land tax. It is imposed on the land that is conquered from the disbelievers, either by force or by peaceful means.³⁸⁸

It is allowed for the conquered lands to be divided up among the fighters. However, Umar made ijtehad and kept the ownership of the land with the state and charged a tax (kharaj) for utilising it. In this way he created an ongoing revenue for the Islamic state.

Umar said: "If I divide it (the land) among them, it will become a fortune used by 'the rich among you' (Qur'an 59:7), and the Muslims who come after you will not have anything. Allah has given them a right in that, as He (swt) says: "And those who came after them" (Qur'an 59:10).' Then he said: 'This refers to all the people until the Day of Resurrection.'" After this, Umar and the senior Sahabah decided not to divide the land among the fighters.³⁸⁹

This policy also had the effect of abolishing the feudal system which had oppressed the non-Muslim peasant populations living under the Persian and Roman empires in Iraq and Syria.

Dr Sallabi says: One of the most important effects of this decision was that it put an end to the feudal system. 'Umar abolished the unfair system that had made land-ownership a monopoly and enslaved the peasants to cultivate the land for nothing. Umar left the land of as-sawad in the hands of the peasants, who were to cultivate it in return for paying a just tax (kharaj) which they would be able to afford each year. The peasants were pleased with the decision of 'Umar ibn al-Khattab which gave them possession of the agricultural land which they were to cultivate in return for the kharaj which they could afford. This made them feel for the first time in their lives that they, and not the feudal lords of the ruling class, were the owners of the agricultural land. The peasants had been simply workers who cultivated the land and got nothing in return, and all their hard work went to line the pockets of the feudal class of land-owners, who left them nothing but a few crumbs.³⁹⁰

5.4 Minting Islamic Currency

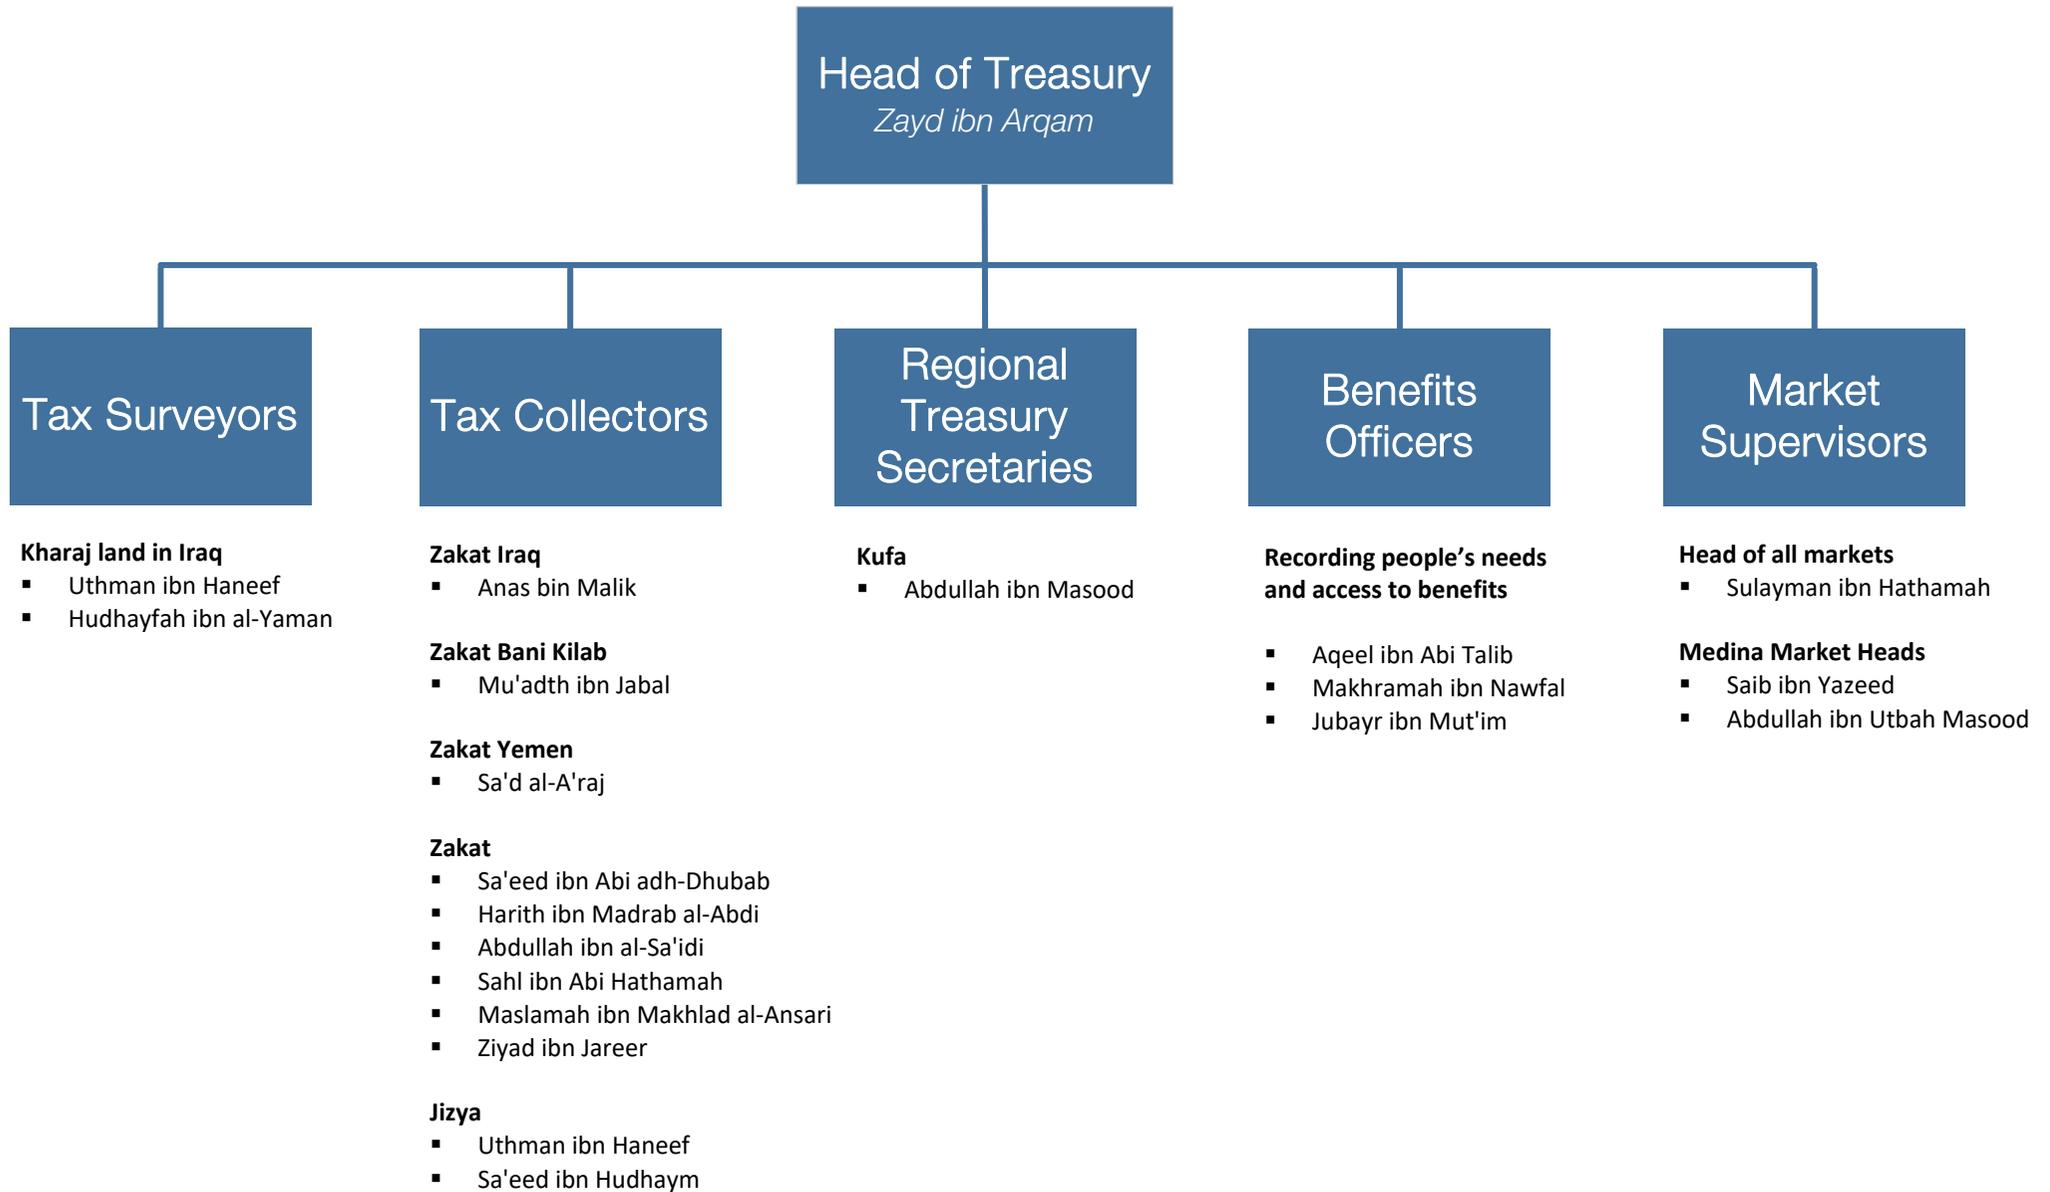

The Islamic State has a bi-metallic currency based on gold and silver, and cannot issue any currency which is not backed by this. Historically people used gold and silver coins, whereas in modern times a future state can simply issue paper or digital currency, as long as the bait ul-mal reserves have the gold and silver to match what is in circulation.

Muslims prior to Umar used Byzantine coins with Christian inscriptions, or Persian coins with Zoroastrian inscriptions.

Al-Maqreezi says: "The first one to mint coins in Islam was 'Umar ibn al-Khattab in 18 AH, imprinting over Persian inscriptions, adding the words "al-HamduLillah (praise be to Allah)" or "La ilaha illa-Allah (there is no god but Allah)", and adding the name of the caliph 'Umar on part of it .³⁹¹

10.6 Accounting the Governors

For the citizens of the Caliphate, their first point of contact with the leadership of the state is the governor and the hakim. The governor and hakim are managing people's day to day affairs on a local and regional level. If the governor is oppressive then this affects people's daily lives more than any other government official including the Caliph. This is why Umar instigated a number of policies to keep the governors in check.⁴⁸³ These policies are covered below.

1. Asking the governors to enter Madeenah by day, so the tax revenues they brought could be seen by all.
2. Asking the governors to send delegations to Madeenah from the local people so they can give testimony on the situation in their province.
3. Mail service where local people could send a letter directly to the Caliph without the governor knowing or interfering.
4. Appointment of Muhammad ibn Maslamah as an Executive Assistant to inspect the provinces and be the Caliph's eyes and ears on the ground. He would also implement any punishments ordered against the governor.
5. Regular inspections of the regions by the Caliph. Umar went to Syria and met with the governors and hakims there.
6. Record keeping. The governor had a chest which contained all the documents and treaties relating to his rule. In particular the dhimmah treaties detailing the rights and responsibilities of the conquered peoples.

7. Restricted powers. Responsibility for the army, judiciary and treasury were either given solely to the governor or these posts were assigned their own heads who reported directly to the Caliph. For example, Abu Ubaydah was the governor of Syria but was also in charge of the army. Ammar bin Yassar was the governor of Kufa, but Abdullah ibn Masood was sent along with him to be in charge of the Bait ul-Mal (treasury) and the judiciary.

Some of the punishments carried out against the governors were:⁴⁸⁴

1. Settling scores with governors when they erred by returning the rights to the people.

Umar ibn Al-Khattab: Governors

11. Spread of Islam

The effect of Islam's Foreign Policy led the conquered people to integrate in to the Islamic society, and became a catalyst for them to embrace Islam willingly without coercion. This is exemplified by Abu Ubaydah who was the governor general of Syria (governor with responsibility for the army).

A few years after Homs was conquered and opened to Islam the Muslims were forced in to a temporary retreat back to Damascus. Abu 'Ubaydah ordered his commander Habeeb ibn Maslamah, "Give back to the local people with whom we made a treaty (Christian dhimmi) what we took from them, for we should not take anything from them if we do not protect them."

The next day Abu 'Ubaydah ordered the Muslim army to march to Damascus, and Habeeb ibn Maslamah called the people from whom he had taken the jizyah and returned their wealth to them. He told them what Abu 'Ubaydah had said, and the people of Homs started saying, "May Allah bring you back to us, and may Allah curse the Byzantines who used to rule over us. By Allah, they would not have returned anything to us, rather they would have confiscated it and taken whatever they could of our wealth. Your rule and justice are dearer to us than the oppression that we used to suffer."⁴⁸⁵

11.1 Iraq and the East Campaign

Over the duration of Umar's rule there were three Amirs of Jihad in Iraq and the East. Unlike in Syria there was no overall governor. Each of the main cities and areas was its own province. The three Amirs of Jihad in chronological order were:

1. Abu Ubayd ath-Thaqafi
2. Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas
3. An-Nu'man ibn Muqrin

12. Non-Muslim citizens (dhimmi)

Dhimmi are those citizens of the Caliphate that hold different beliefs and values to the ideology of the state i.e. Islam. The word dhimmi is derived from the Arabic word dhimmah, which means pledge or covenant ('ahd).

The state makes a pledge to treat the dhimmi in accordance with the specific terms of the peace treaty made with them (if applicable) and not to interfere in their beliefs, worships and those actions that contradict Islam but were permitted to the dhimmi by the Messenger of Allah ﷺ such as drinking alcohol. In all other areas they are viewed and treated in the same way as Muslims unless belief in Islam is a condition for the action. Some examples of this during the Caliphate of Umar are:

12.1 Access to Benefits

Umar ibn al-Khattab once passed by an old dhimmi begging at doors, and said: "We have not done justice to you if we have taken jizya from you in the prime of your youth and neglected you in your old age." He then ordered from the treasury what was suitable for him.⁵²⁰

12.2 Low taxation

'Amr ibn Maymun said, "I saw 'Umar four nights before he was assassinated sitting on top a camel, saying to Hudhayfa ibn al-Yaman and

'Uthman ibn al-Hunayf, 'Review the affairs under your charge. Do you think that you have burdened the tenants with what they cannot bear?'" 'Uthman replied, 'I have levied on them an amount that I could double and they would still have the ability to pay.' Hudhayfa said: 'I have imposed on them an amount that leaves a large surplus.'"

Abu Ubayd commenting on this said: this is the legal rule in our view for the imposition of jizya and kharaj; they are levied in accordance with the *capacity of the dhimmis to pay, without burdening them and without adversely affecting the fay' of the Muslims; however, no limit is imposed on it.*⁵²¹

12.3 Access to justice

Imam Malik narrated from Sa'eed ibn al-Musayyib that a Jew and a Muslim referred their dispute to Umar ibn al-Khattab. Umar saw that the Jew was in the right and he ruled in his favour. The Jew said to him: "By Allah you have ruled correctly."⁵²²

13. Infrastructure Development

Abu Bakr's Caliphate was only two years, and the first year was dominated by uniting the Muslims and fighting the rebellious tribes. This laid a solid foundation for Abu Bakr's successor Umar ibn Al-Khattab to build a huge state and develop infrastructure to manage people's interests.

The state is the method (tareeqa) of implementing Islam. As individuals and groups, one may spend a lifetime building one mosque yet within Umar's Caliphate the number of mosques in which Jumu'ah prayers were offered reached 12,000.⁵²³

There were no central departments for managing the people's interests and infrastructure, so this responsibility was given by Umar to each of the governors, who he ordered to establish new cities, mosques and other infrastructure in their respective provinces. Some of the main infrastructure development projects are listed below.

13.1 Expansion of Masjid an-Nabawi

The size of the mosque was expanded:

- 10 cubits (6.2m) towards the qiblah
- 20 cubits (12.3m) towards the west
- 70 cubits (43.1m) towards the north

NOTE. It's assumed here that the cubits are Hashemite cubits which are equal to 61.6cm.⁵²⁴

Umar rebuilt it with bricks and palm leaves, made its pillars of wood and gave it a roof of palm leaves, to protect people from the rain.

He forbade adorning the mosque with red or yellow lest that distract the people from their prayer.

The mosque had a dirt floor, which he paved with stones so that it would be cleaner for those who were praying and more comfortable for walking on.⁵²⁵

13.2 Expansion of Masjid Al-Haram

Umar moved Maqam Ibraheem – which was attached to the Ka’bah – to the place where it is now, to make it easier for people to do tawaf and to pray, and he put a cabinet over it.

He bought the houses around the mosque and demolished them to add that space to the mosque. Some of the neighbours of the mosque refused to sell their houses, so he demolished them and kept the money for them to take later on. He also built low walls around the mosque so that lamps could be placed on them.

During the jahiliyah, the cover of the Ka’bah (kiswah) was made of leather. The Prophet ﷺ covered it with Yemeni cloth, then ‘Umar covered it with qibati cloth, which is a fine, white Egyptian cloth.

13.3 New cities

The most important cities which were founded at this time were Basra, Kufah, Mosul, al-Fustat, Giza and Sirt. Umar allocated army divisions to the cities and established mosques and markets, and set aside common land

(al-hima) for grazing the horses and camels of the soldiers. He encouraged people to bring their wives and children from the cities of Hijaz and all parts of Arabia to settle in these new cities, so that they would become garrison towns from which the armies could be mobilized and supplied, to penetrate deep into enemy land and spread the call of Islam therein.⁵²⁶

13.4 Case Study: Basra⁵²⁷

The meaning of the Arabic word basrah is rugged land with solid rocks; or it was said that it means pebbled land, or soft white rocks. Basra is a city which is located at the point where the Tigris and Euphrates meet, a meeting point which is known as Shall al-'Arab.

1. Choosing the location

Utbah ibn Ghazwan, one of the earliest companions of the Messenger of Allah ﷺ, was appointed as governor-general in that area of Iraq, and he consulted Umar with regard to establishing a city in Basra. Umar commanded him to choose a place that was close to water and pasture land, so Utbah chose the site of Basra and wrote to 'Umar, saying: "I have found land that is between cultivated land and wilderness, with ponds and reeds nearby."

Umar read the letter and said: "This is green land that is near water and pastures and firewood." Umar wrote back telling him to settle there. So he settled there.

2. Initiating the build

Utbah built its mosque from reeds, and built his governor's house near the mosque. The people built seven residential areas from reeds too, because there were so many available there. When they went out on a military campaign, they would pull up the reeds and stack them in piles until they came back from the campaign, then they would rebuild the houses. But the reeds were burned in a fire, so they asked 'Umar for permission to build with adobe bricks and he gave them permission; that was during the governorship of Abu Moosa al-Ash'ari, after 'Utbah had died in 17 A.H. Abu Moosa built the mosque and the governor's house with adobe and mud, and gave it a thatched roof. Then he rebuilt it with stones and bricks, and allocated areas to different tribes.

3. Town planning

Abu Moosa made the main streets 60 cubits wide, the other streets 20 cubits wide and the alleys 7 cubits wide. In the middle of each loop of houses they left a spacious area to tie their horses and bury their dead, and the houses were joined on to one another.

Umar ordered Abu Moosa to dig a channel for the people of Basra, so he dug the channel of al-Ablah towards Basra for a distance of three parasangs (3 miles).

13.5 Transportation

Umar set aside a large number of camels - which were a means of transportation available at that time - to make it easy for those who had no mounts to move between the Arabian Peninsula, Syria and Iraq.

He also set up the dar ad-daqqeq (lit. house of flour) which was a place where saweeq, dates and raisins, and other requirements of life were stored, which could be used by stranded wayfarers and guests who were strangers.

On the road between Makkah and Madeenah he provided whatever travellers would need and mounts to take them from oasis to oasis.⁵²⁸

Umar ordered the governors to maintain the roads and bridges and build new roads where needed. He also ordered Amr ibn al-Aas, the governor of Egypt to re-dig the Pharaohs canal between the Nile and the Red Sea.

13.6 Hijri calendar

It was narrated that 'Uthman ibn 'Ubaydullah said that he heard Sa'eed ibn al-Musayyib say: "Umar ibn al-Khattab gathered the Muhajireen and Ansar together and said, 'From when should we date our history?' Ali ibn Abi Talib said to him, 'From the time when the Prophet ﷺ came out of the land of shirk' i.e., from the day he migrated. So Umar ibn al-Khattab adopted that date for the beginning of the calendar."

And it was narrated that Sa'eed ibn al-Musayyib said: "The first one to *establish the calendar was 'Umar ibn al-Khattab, two and half years into his caliphate. He reached a decision in consultation with 'Ali ibn Abi Talib.'*⁵²⁹

13.7 Famine in the Arabian Peninsula⁵³⁰

When a natural disaster hits, then all aspects of the state's infrastructure need to be mobilised. The army, governors, treasury and so on will all be utilised in the relief effort. This is the power of a state as compared to small charity organisations which is why the Prophet ﷺ said,

وَالْإِمَامُ رَاعٍ وَمَسْئُولٌ عَنْ رَعِيَّتِهِ

“The imam is a guardian and is responsible for his citizens.”⁵³¹

In 18 AH the Arabian Peninsula was struck by a severe famine and drought, and hunger grew so severe that wild animals started coming into the towns, and if a man slaughtered a sheep he would not be able to eat it because it was so scrawny, and the flocks died of hunger.

This year was called the year of ar-Ramadah because the wind blew the dust around like ashes (ar-ramad).

The drought was severe and there was no food to be had. The people flocked from the farthest deserts to Madeenah to stay in the city or nearby, seeking a solution from the caliph. Umar, in addition to constantly making du'a and asking the Muslims to pray for rain (salatul Istisqa) he undertook a number of practical actions.

1. Leading by example

Umar knew his responsibility and took a hands-on role during the famine leading by example. He personally cooked and distributed food to those in need.

Abu Hurayrah said: “May Allah have mercy on Ibn Hantamah (i.e. Umar). I saw him in the year of ar-ramadah, carrying two sacks on his back and a container of oil in his hand, taking turns with Aslam to carry them. When he saw me, he said: ‘Where did you come from. O’ Abu Hurayrah?’ I said, ‘From nearby.’ I started helping him and we carried those things until we reached Dirar, where there was a group of about twenty families from (the tribe of) Muharib. ‘Umar said,

'What brings you here?' They said, 'Hunger.'

They brought out to us the baked skin of a dead animal that they had been eating, and some ground up bones that they had been eating. I saw 'Umar put down his cloak and start to cook for them and feed them until they had eaten their fill. Then he sent Aslam to Madeenah and he brought some camels which he gave them to ride until he brought them to al-Jabbanah. Then he gave them some clothes, and he kept checking on them and on others until Allah relieved them of that drought."

It was narrated that Aslam said: "We used to say that if Allah had not lifted the famine during the year of ar-ramadah, we thought that 'Umar would have died out of concern for the Muslims."

2. Establishment of Refugee camps

It was narrated that Aslam said: "During the year of ar-Ramadah, the Arabs came from all directions to Madeenah. 'Umar ordered some men to look after them, and I heard him say one night: "Count how many people ate supper with us." So they counted them and found that there were seven thousand men. They counted the sick men and children, and there were forty thousand of them. A few days later the number of men and children reached sixty thousand. Shortly after that, Allah sent rain, and when it rained, I saw 'Umar had appointed men to take them back out to the desert, and he gave them food and lambs. But death had already begun to stalk them and I think that two-thirds of them died. "

The workers would set up Umar's cooking pots from the end of the night and make soup and a kind of bread.

3. Establishment of a disaster agency

Umar divided the work up among his workers and set up an institution to help the refugees, in which every worker knew exactly what he was supposed to be doing, and did not duplicate the work assigned to someone else.

He appointed people in different parts of Madeenah to check on the people who had gathered there to seek food because of the severe drought and famine that had befallen them; they would supervise the distribution of food to the people.

When evening came, they would meet with him and tell him about what they had done, and he would give them further instructions.

Umar distributed food and provisions to many of the tribes where they were, via committees that he formed. When the camels of 'Amr ibn al-'As reached the border of Syria, 'Umar sent someone to supervise their distribution as they entered the Arabian Peninsula. They distributed the aid to various parts of Arabia, slaughtered the camels, handed out the flour and gave out clothing. 'Umar sent men with the food that 'Amr had sent from Egypt by sea, to take it to Tihamah and feed the people there.

4. Utilising the Economic Institutions of the state

Umar fed the Bedouins from Dar ad-Daqeeq which was one of the economic institutions that were set up at the time of Umar to distribute food to those who came to Madeenah. It distributed flour, saweeq, dates and raisins from the stores in Dar ad-Daqeeq before supplies started to come from Egypt, Syria and Iraq. The Dar ad-Daqeeq had expanded and was able to feed the tens of thousands who came to Madeenah for nine months, before the rains came and people were able to go back to normal.

5. Seeking help from the other provinces

The Islamic State is administratively divided in to different provinces but it is one state and one people. The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: "You see the believers as regards their being merciful among themselves and showing love among themselves and being kind, resembling one body, so that, if any part of the body is not well then the whole body shares the sleeplessness and fever with it."⁵³²

Umar sent word to 'Amr ibn al-'As, his governor in Egypt, saying: "From the slave of Allah 'Umar ibn al-Khattab, the Ameer al-Mu'mineen, to 'Amr ibn al-'As. Peace be upon you. Do you want me and those around me to die, whilst you and those around you are living a life of luxury? Help, help!”

‘Amr ibn al-‘As wrote back to him: “To the slave of Allah Ameer al-Mu‘mineen from ‘ Amr ibn al-‘As. Peace be upon you. I praise Allah, beside Whom there is no other god. Help is on its way, just wait. I am sending to you a caravan the first of which will reach you whilst the last of it is still with me. I also hope to find a way to send help by sea.”

Umar wrote to each of his governors in Syria: “Send us food to help those who are with us, for they will die unless Allah has mercy on them.”

And he wrote to his agents in Iraq and Persia with a similar request, and they all sent aid to him.

6. Suspension of hadd punishment for theft

Cutting the hand of a thief requires a number of conditions to be met. If someone is stealing food due to dire necessity then their hand is not cut. During a severe famine the Prophet ﷺ said: «قَالَ لَا قَطْعَ فِي مَجَاعَةٍ مُضْطَرِّ» “There is no cutting in the compelling famine”.⁵³³

According upon this hadith Umar suspended the hadd punishment for theft during the famine. For example, some slaves took a camel and slaughtered it, so Umar ordered their master Hatib to pay the price of the camel and they were not punished.

13.8 Instituting a formal process for electing the Caliph⁵³⁴

The Muslims came to Umar requesting he choose for them the next Caliph similar to what Abu Bakr did when he recommended Umar. However, Umar could not decide on one person so he recommended six of the senior sahaba who were all Ashratul-Mubashireen to form a council and they would select one man from among them to be the next Caliph.

Umar's son Abdullah ibn Umar was an expert in governmental affairs and he is the main narrator of the hadith related to ruling found in Imam Muslim's Kitab ul-Imara. However, Umar specifically forbade his son from being a candidate for the post but due to his expertise allowed him to be part of the council to voice his opinion only. This prevented any form of hereditary rule appearing in the state.

Suhaib ar-Rumi was appointed over the prayer (salah) which is an indication that he was in fact the provisional Ameer running the state and overseeing the election process. He wasn't simply leading the people in prayer in the mosque. This is because the word salah has a majaz (metaphorical) meaning when its linked to matters of state which is 'ruling'.

Umar said: "You have this group whom, when the Messenger of Allah ﷺ died, he was pleased with them, and he said about them: They are the people of paradise:

1. 'Ali ibn Talib
2. 'Uthman ibn Affan
3. Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas
4. Abdur Rahman ibn Awf
5. Az-Zubayr ibn Al-Awwam
6. Talha ibn Ubaydullah

Let Abdullah ibn Umar be with them, but let him have only an opinion without having any consideration in the matter of the Caliphate."

He said: "When I die, consult for three days, and let Suhaib (in these days) lead the Muslims in prayer. Do not let the fourth day come without having an Ameer upon you.”⁵³⁵

Once Umar died and was buried, the electoral council convened and Abdur-Rahman ibn ‘Awf withdrew himself from being a candidate so he could take the lead on the consultative process. The first shortlisting by the council produced two candidates which were Uthman bin Affan and Ali bin Abi Talib. After this, Abdur-Rahman consulted the people of Madeenah. The people wanted the new Caliph to rule in the same way as the previous two Caliphs i.e. Abu Bakr and Umar. Ali did not agree to this and wanted to rule according to his own ijtiḥad, but Uthman agreed, and so Uthman was chosen by the people and given the bay’ah.

Al-Miswar ibn Makhrama said:

“Abdur-Rahman ibn ‘Awf knocked at my door after a slumber in the night, so he knocked on the door till I awoke. He said; ‘I see you sleeping. By Allah, I did not enjoy enough sleep in these three (nights).’ When the people prayed the Subh, the Bay’ah was concluded.”⁵³⁶

The ummah has the right to contract the bay’ah to whoever fulfils the seven contractual conditions of the post. Different styles and means can be utilised in contracting the bay’ah but the fixed ahkam which cannot change are as follows. All of these are derived from the action of Umar which is considered ijma as-Sahaba and therefore a sharia rule.

1. There is no hereditary rule.
2. The work to appoint a Caliph must be done day and night until the task is complete
3. The appointment of a provisional Ameer to run the state and oversee the election of the next Caliph. His position expires once the bay’ah has been given to the new Caliph.
4. The representatives of the ummah will shortlist the candidates for the post of Caliph twice. Firstly, to six and then to two. A candidate is then chosen from these final two.

5. The maximum time limit for choosing the next Caliph is 3 days and their nights. After which the ummah is sinful unless due to necessity there is a compelling reason for delaying the process further.

Muawiya bin Yazid who is noted in history as an Umayyad Caliph and known for his piety and honesty, wanted to introduce this process and abolish the Umayyad hereditary rule. Ibn Kathir narrates that he would say, “O people! Indeed, I have been entrusted with your affairs while I am weak and unable. I would therefore like for you to concede leadership to a man of strength in the same manner that as-Siddiq (Abu Bakr) endowed Umar. If you will, then appoint a committee for consultation comprised of six persons from amongst you as Umar bin al-Khattab did; for just one of you cannot be right concerning it. And so, I have bequeathed your affairs to yourselves, therefore you should appoint the one that is most fitting to undertake leadership over you.”⁵³⁷

Unfortunately, he was seriously ill and not in office long so this was never introduced.

- Senior Sahaba⁵⁵⁵
- 'Amr ibn al-'Aas⁵⁵⁶ Senior advisor to the Caliph

4.2 Allowing the senior sahaba to leave for foreign lands

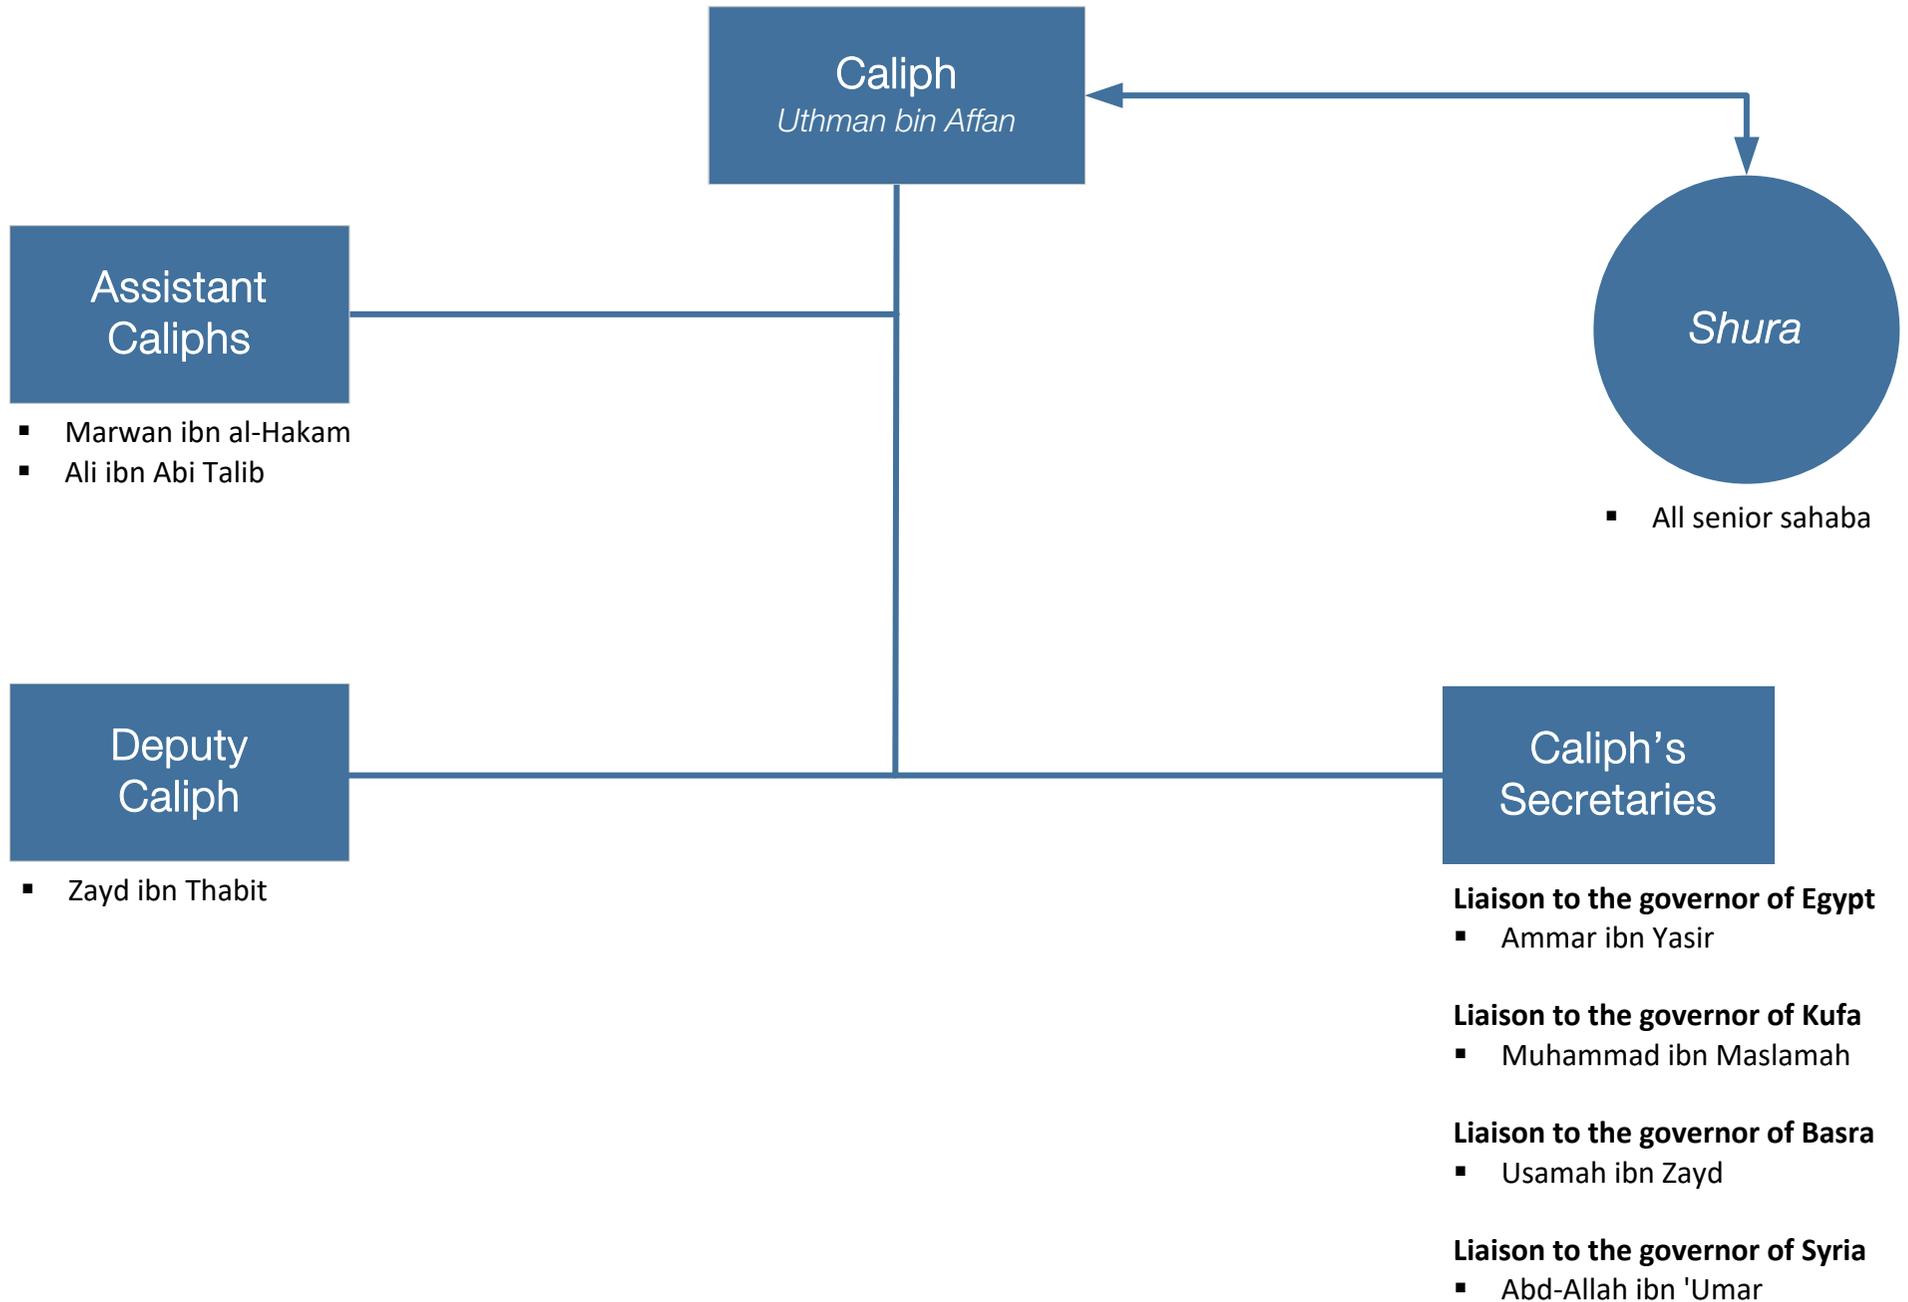

The senior sahaba were a political party that acted as a guardian over the thoughts and emotions of the Islamic society. They would correct the Caliph and other officials when they erred and give sincere advice on policy decisions. When 'Umar was Caliph he prevented the senior sahaba from leaving to other countries, except with his permission for a short period of time. He liked to keep this core group close to him even though the sahaba wanted to leave Medina so they could assist in spreading Islam far and wide in the newly conquered lands.

When Uthman became the Caliph he changed this policy and allowed them to leave Medina and settle in distant lands.⁵⁵⁷ The consequence of losing this core group was a factor in the fitna which led to anti-government demonstrations against Uthman and his eventual assassination. This sowed the seeds for a civil war between the next Caliph, Imam Ali and the governor of Ash-Sham, Muawiyah ibn Abi Sufyan.

8.8 Duties of the Governors⁶²⁷

For the citizens of the Caliphate, their first point of contact with the leadership of the state is the governor and the mayor because they are managing people's day to day affairs on a local and regional level. They had no set working hours and were expected to be available 24x7 for the people. Similar to the time of Umar all infrastructure development and expansion of the state was down to the governors. Some of their main duties were:

1. Educating the people of the region in Islam
2. Establishing the prayer by planning and building mosques
3. Protecting Islam and its principles
4. Facilitating Hajj
5. Carrying out hadd punishments
6. Keeping people safe

7. Striving to ensure people can earn a livelihood
8. Appointing workers and employees
9. Taking care of ahl al-dhimmah (non-Muslim citizens)
10. Making shura (consultation) on their decisions
11. Checking the province's need for development and construction
12. Paying attention to the social situations of the provincial inhabitants

13. The governor's working hours - 24x7

The governors took on the responsibility for protecting and expanding the state. Some of their tasks related to this were:

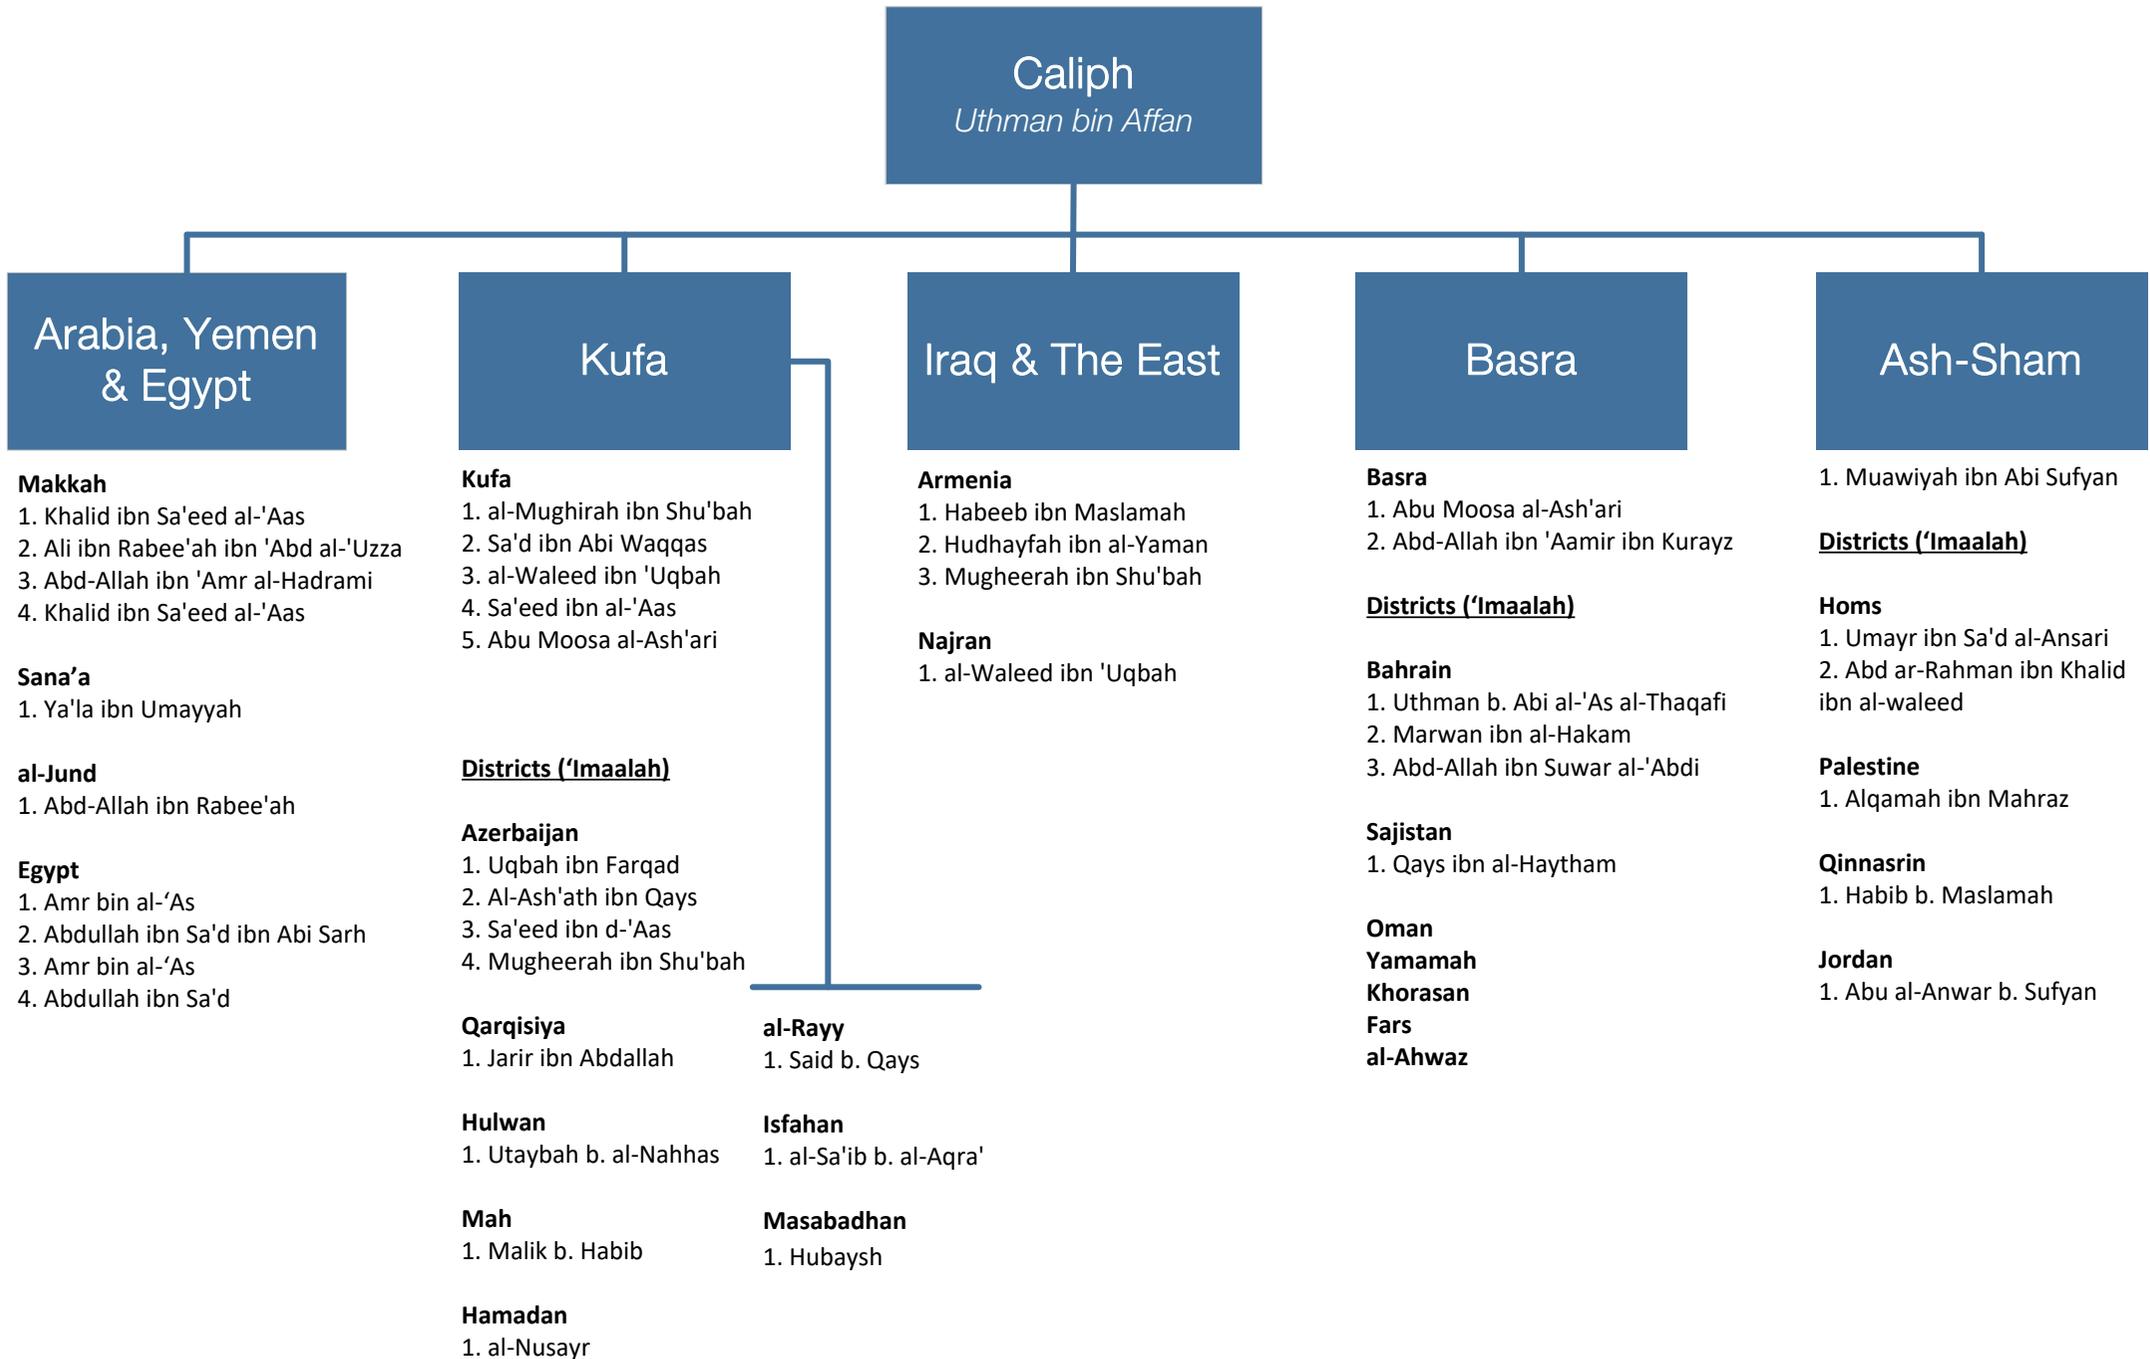

1. The governors sent volunteers to fight
2. Defending the province against the state's enemies
3. Fortifying their lands.
4. Seeking information about the enemy.
5. Supplying horses where needed
6. Teaching children and preparing them for war
7. Keeping records of the troops (diwaan).
8. Upholding the treaties.

8.9 Accounting the Governors⁶²⁸

Since the governor is very powerful position in the state second only to the Caliph then accountability mechanisms must be implemented to ensure no oppression takes place. Some of the processes Uthman put in place were:

1. Attending Hajj to speak to the citizens of the provinces
2. Regular correspondence with the governors
3. Summoning the governors and questioning them about the situation in their lands
4. Asking governors to send delegations from the provinces so that he could ask them about their commanders and governors
5. Travelling to some provinces to check on things for himself
6. Sending inspectors to the provinces
7. Trusted advisors in the regions who wrote to the caliph about the situation
8. Questioning those who came from other regions and provinces

Uthman bin Affan: Governors

9. Spread of Islam

9.1 The Campaign in the East

After Umar bin Al-Khattab was assassinated a number of regions in the East (Iran, Afghanistan, Azerbaijan) believed the Islamic State was now in a position of weakness and so they rebelled against the state and broke their treaties. When Uthman was elected as the Caliph he began re-conquering those regions in addition to new territories. Leadership in Islam is not built on the personality of the leader or army commander. Rather leadership is built on the Islamic ideology and even if we lose a great leader the Islamic conquests will continue. This was shown to be true when Umar bin al-Khattab replaced Khalid bin Walid, the Amir of Jihad in Syria with Abu Ubaydah ibn Al-Jarrah. Victories continued under Abu Ubaydah as they had done under Khalid bin Walid. Likewise, victories continued under Uthman as they had under Umar.

10. Infrastructure Development

Most of the infrastructure development was undertaken by the governors in their respective provinces but some of the major projects were organised centrally by Uthman.

10.1 Expansion of Masjid an-Nabawi and Masjid ul-Haram⁶⁴⁶

The Caliphate is also known as the Imamate where the Caliph is the Imam who is responsible for the establishment of salah within the state. In the capital the Caliph should lead the jum'ah prayer and in the provincial capitals it should be the governor. Building and maintaining mosques is a duty of the state and thousands of mosques were built during the time of Uthman as they were in the time of the previous Caliphs Abu Bakr and Umar. Due to the massive increase in the Muslim population the two holy mosques in Makkah and Medina had to be expanded again. Uthman also started paying salaries to Muezzins from the state treasury.

10.2 Establishing the first navy⁶⁴⁷

The Byzantines had a well-established navy and had been seafarers since ancient times. This posed a major threat to the coastlines of the Islamic State most notably Alexandria in Egypt and other coastal ports on the Mediterranean. A new navy had to be established in order to confront this threat.

Muawiya the governor of Ash-Sham tried to convince the previous Caliph Umar ibn Al-Khattab to establish a navy but Umar on the advice of Amr ibn Al-'Aas refused because he didn't want to risk the lives of the Muslim soldiers by fighting a battle with the well-established Byzantine Navy. Umar said, 'No, by the One Who sent Muhammad with the truth, I will never let a Muslim campaign by sea. By Allah, a Muslim is dearer to me than all that the Byzantines have. Stop suggesting that to me.'⁶⁴⁸

When Uthman became Caliph Muawiya tried again to convince him of the necessity of establishing a navy and Uthman then gave his approval delegating the responsibility to Muawiya who appointed Abd-Allah ibn Qays as the first Amir of the Navy. The Muslims motivated by their Islamic aqeeda learnt the art of shipbuilding and naval warfare in record time and managed to achieve a decisive victory against the Byzantine navy at the battle of Dhat al-Sawari which took place off the coast of Alexandria. The Byzantine historian Theophanes said: 'This battle was a second Yarmook for the Byzantines.'

The navy of the Islamic state then began conquering the Mediterranean islands one by one. Cyprus, Crete, Corsica, Sardinia and the Balearic Islands all fell to the Muslims.

Umm Haram bint Milhan was the maternal aunt of the Prophet ﷺ and she accompanied the navy during the Cyprus campaign and died and is buried in Cyprus. This was foretold by the Prophet ﷺ in a famous hadith.

One day the Messenger of Allah ﷺ entered the house of Umm Haram, and she provided him with food and started grooming his head. Then the Messenger of Allah slept, then he woke up smiling.

Umm Haram asked, "What is making you smile, O Messenger of Allah?"

He said, "Some people of my ummah were shown to me (in my dream) campaigning for the sake of Allah, sailing in the middle of the sea like kings on thrones. "

Umm Haram added, "I said, 'O Messenger of Allah! Pray to Allah to make me one of them.'" So the Messenger of Allah ﷺ prayed to Allah for her and then laid his head down (and slept).

Then he woke up smiling (again). (Umm Haram added): I said, "What is making you smile, O Messenger of Allah?" He said, "Some people of my ummah were shown to me (in my dream) campaigning for the sake of Allah, "

He said the same as he had said before. I said, "O Messenger of Allah! Pray to Allah to make me one of them." He said, "You will be among the first ones."⁶⁴⁹

10.3 Moving the port of al-Shu'aybah to Jeddah⁶⁵⁰

In 26 AH, the people of Makkah spoke to 'Uthman about moving the port from Shu'aybah, which was the old port of Makkah during the Jahiliyyah, to where it is now in Jeddah, because it was closer. 'Uthman went out to Jeddah to see its location, and he ordered that the port be moved there.

10.4 Digging wells⁶⁵¹

Water wells are the life blood of a community and the state treasury was used to build these where needed. One of these wells was the famous well of Bi'r Arees which was dug 2 miles outside Madinah. These water wells were public property and couldn't be privately owned due to their necessity for the community.

10.5 Establishing guest houses⁶⁵²

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said:

مَنْ كَانَ يُؤْمِنُ بِاللَّهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ فَلْيُكْرِمْ

ضَيْفَهُ

“Whoever believes in Allah and the Last Day, should serve his guest generously.”⁶⁵³

Inns were established in various provinces and along the main travel routes as Umar had done previously. These inns provided accommodation and food for those travellers without anywhere to stay.

10.6 Compiling the Qur'an⁶⁵⁴

When the Prophet ﷺ died the entire Qur'an had been written down on pieces of animal bone, palm leaf and thin stone tablets. All of the Qur'an was also preserved in the hearts of the sahaba.

Abu Bakr, when he was Caliph then undertook the task of bringing together all the written pieces of the Qur'an in to one manuscript. This copy was handed down to his successor Umar and then remained with Umar's daughter Hafsa after Umar died.

During the time of Uthman some regions of the state recited the Qur'an differently in their own dialects and this was leading to fitna (discord) being created among the people. Hudhayfah ibn al-Yaman who was one of the commanders leading the conquests of Tabaristan had troops from both Iraq and Ash-Sham in his army. He noticed that the troops from Ash-Sham were reciting according to the recitation of Ubay ibn Ka'b, and they were coming with recitations the people of Iraq had not heard of. Also he saw the people of Iraq reciting according to the recitation of 'Abd Allah ibn Mas'ud and so they brought recitations the people of Ash-Sham had not heard of. This led some to accuse the other of disbelief. So Hudhayfah travelled to Medina to meet Uthman and asked him to adopt on a single Qur'anic recitation which he did. Uthman established an agency for producing seven copies of the Qur'an based on Hafsa's master copy and these new seven were fixed on the dialect of Quraish. Uthman then appointed a number of teachers to take the new mushaf to a particular province and teach the people its recitation.

Uthman averted a major fitna with regards to the Qur'an by this policy.

11. Rebellion and Uthman's assassination

A coordinated conspiracy took place in the latter half of Uthman's rule which led to his eventual assassination. Imam al-Zuhri said: *'Uthman ruled for twelve years as caliph, during the first six years of which the people did not criticize him for anything, and he was more beloved to Quraysh than 'Umar ibn al-Khattab because 'Umar had been very strict with them, but 'Uthman was lenient and generous towards them. Then the turmoil began after that. The Muslim historians call the events that happened in the second half of 'Uthman's reign (30-35 AH) the fitnah (turmoil), which ended in the martyrdom of 'Uthman.*⁶⁵⁵

This fitna set in motion a series of events which sparked a civil war during the time of the next Caliph, Imam Ali who spent his entire rule trying to reunify the state. The state was only reunified one again after Imam Hassan abdicated the Caliphate to Muawiya ibn Abi Sufyan. Abu Bakrah narrated: Once the Prophet ﷺ brought out Al-Hasan and took him up the pulpit along with him and said, "This son of mine is a Sayid (i.e. chief) and I hope that Allah will help him bring about reconciliation between two groups of Muslims."⁶⁵⁶

The Caliph is the state and is the leader of all the believers on earth

hence the title Ameer ul-Mu'mineen. Once a legitimate bay'ah has been contracted to him he cannot be removed or forced to resign unless he contradicts one of the pillars of the bay'ah contract.

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said to Uthman three times: "Oh 'Uthman, Allah will give you a garment to wear (i.e. the caliphate), so if the hypocrites want you to shed it, do not shed it until you meet me."⁶⁵⁷

Invalidation of the bay'ah must be proven by an independent judge which in modern times is called the Qadi ul-Mazalim (Judge of Unjust Acts). The ummah has no right to take extra-judicial actions against the ruler unless open kufr is witnessed which is beyond doubt. In this case the ummah has the right of revolution to remove the ruler something which exists in every ruling system. An example of this is when Mustapha Kemal abolished the Caliphate on 3rd March 1924. In this case the ummah should have revolted en-mass but unfortunately due to the severe decline and occupation they were incapable of doing this. Uthman was told explicitly by the Prophet ﷺ not to leave office.

A point to note is that the Islamic State is not a utopia, but is ruled by human beings over human beings who are not perfect and are prone to error and mistake. This is why the sharia contains detailed rules which cover eventualities such as crime, civil war and fitna and how to address them.

Many lessons can be learnt from this and the subsequent civil war such as the importance of maintaining a strong political party (hizb) in the capital and provinces of the state. In addition limiting the powers of the governors so they do not have power over the armed forces, treasury and judiciary which could lead them becoming too powerful and rebelling as happened with Mu'awiya under Imam Ali.

Ali ibn Abi Talib

Style of choosing Caliph

Al-Abbas, uncle of Ali ibn Abi Talib and the Prophet ﷺ, and one of the most respected and influential of the sahaba gave the bay'ah of contract to Ali.

The sharia has not specified any specific number of representatives to contract the bay'ah. So even one person of sufficient standing and influence who Muslims will listen to, can contract the bay'ah. This is what occurred here where Al-Abbas contracted the bay'ah to Ali and the Muslims accepted this. Abbas said to Ali: “Reach out your hand so that I may make allegiance to you and that the people say that the uncle of the Messenger of Allah ﷺ has given bay'ah to his paternal nephew and so that there will not be two persons disputing your Khilafah.”⁶⁸⁸

Provisional Leader

None, but some narrations say Al-Ghafiqi ibn Harb, the rebel leader was in charge for 5 days

Bay'ah of Contract & Obedience

The bay'ah contract was conducted at the same time as the bay'ah of obedience in Masjid an-Nabawi by the inhabitants of Medina. This included the rebels who had assassinated Uthman which then led to the ensuing fitna (discord) between Ali and Mu'awiya.

Time without a Caliph

Difference of opinion. The strongest opinion is no delay but there are narrations which say 5 days.

It should also be noted that Mu'awiya never took the bay'ah until after Ali's death when he concluded the peace treaty with Hasan ibn Ali.⁶⁸⁹

6.1 Dealing with Internal Rebellion

Imam Ali was severely tested by Allah (Most High) when he was Caliph, where he faced multiple revolts across the state. Ali said to his son Al-Hasan, “If only I had died twenty years before this.”⁷³⁴ While this internal rebellion and fitna halted the Islamic conquests and shed many of the sahaba’s blood including Zubair, Talha, Ammar bin Yassar and Imam Ali himself, we learn many lessons which the scholars of the past classified under Ahkam al-Bugha (rules of rebellion).

The basis of dealing with rebellion is from the Holy Qur’an where Allah (Most High) says:

وَإِن طَائِفَتَانِ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ اقْتَتَلُوا فَأَصْلِحُوا

بَيْنَهُمَا ۚ فَإِن بَغَتْ إِحْدَاهُمَا عَلَى الْأُخْرَىٰ

فَقَاتِلُوا الَّتِي تَبْغِي حَتَّىٰ تَفِيءَ إِلَىٰ أَمْرِ اللَّهِ ۗ

فَإِن فَاءَتْ فَأَصْلِحُوا بَيْنَهُمَا بِالْعَدْلِ

وَأَقْسِطُوا ۗ إِنَّ اللَّهَ يُحِبُّ الْمُقْسِطِينَ

“If two parties of the believers fight, make peace between them. But if one of them attacks the other unjustly, fight the attackers until they revert to Allah’s command. If they revert, make peace between them with justice, and be even-handed. Allah loves those who are even-handed.”⁷³⁵

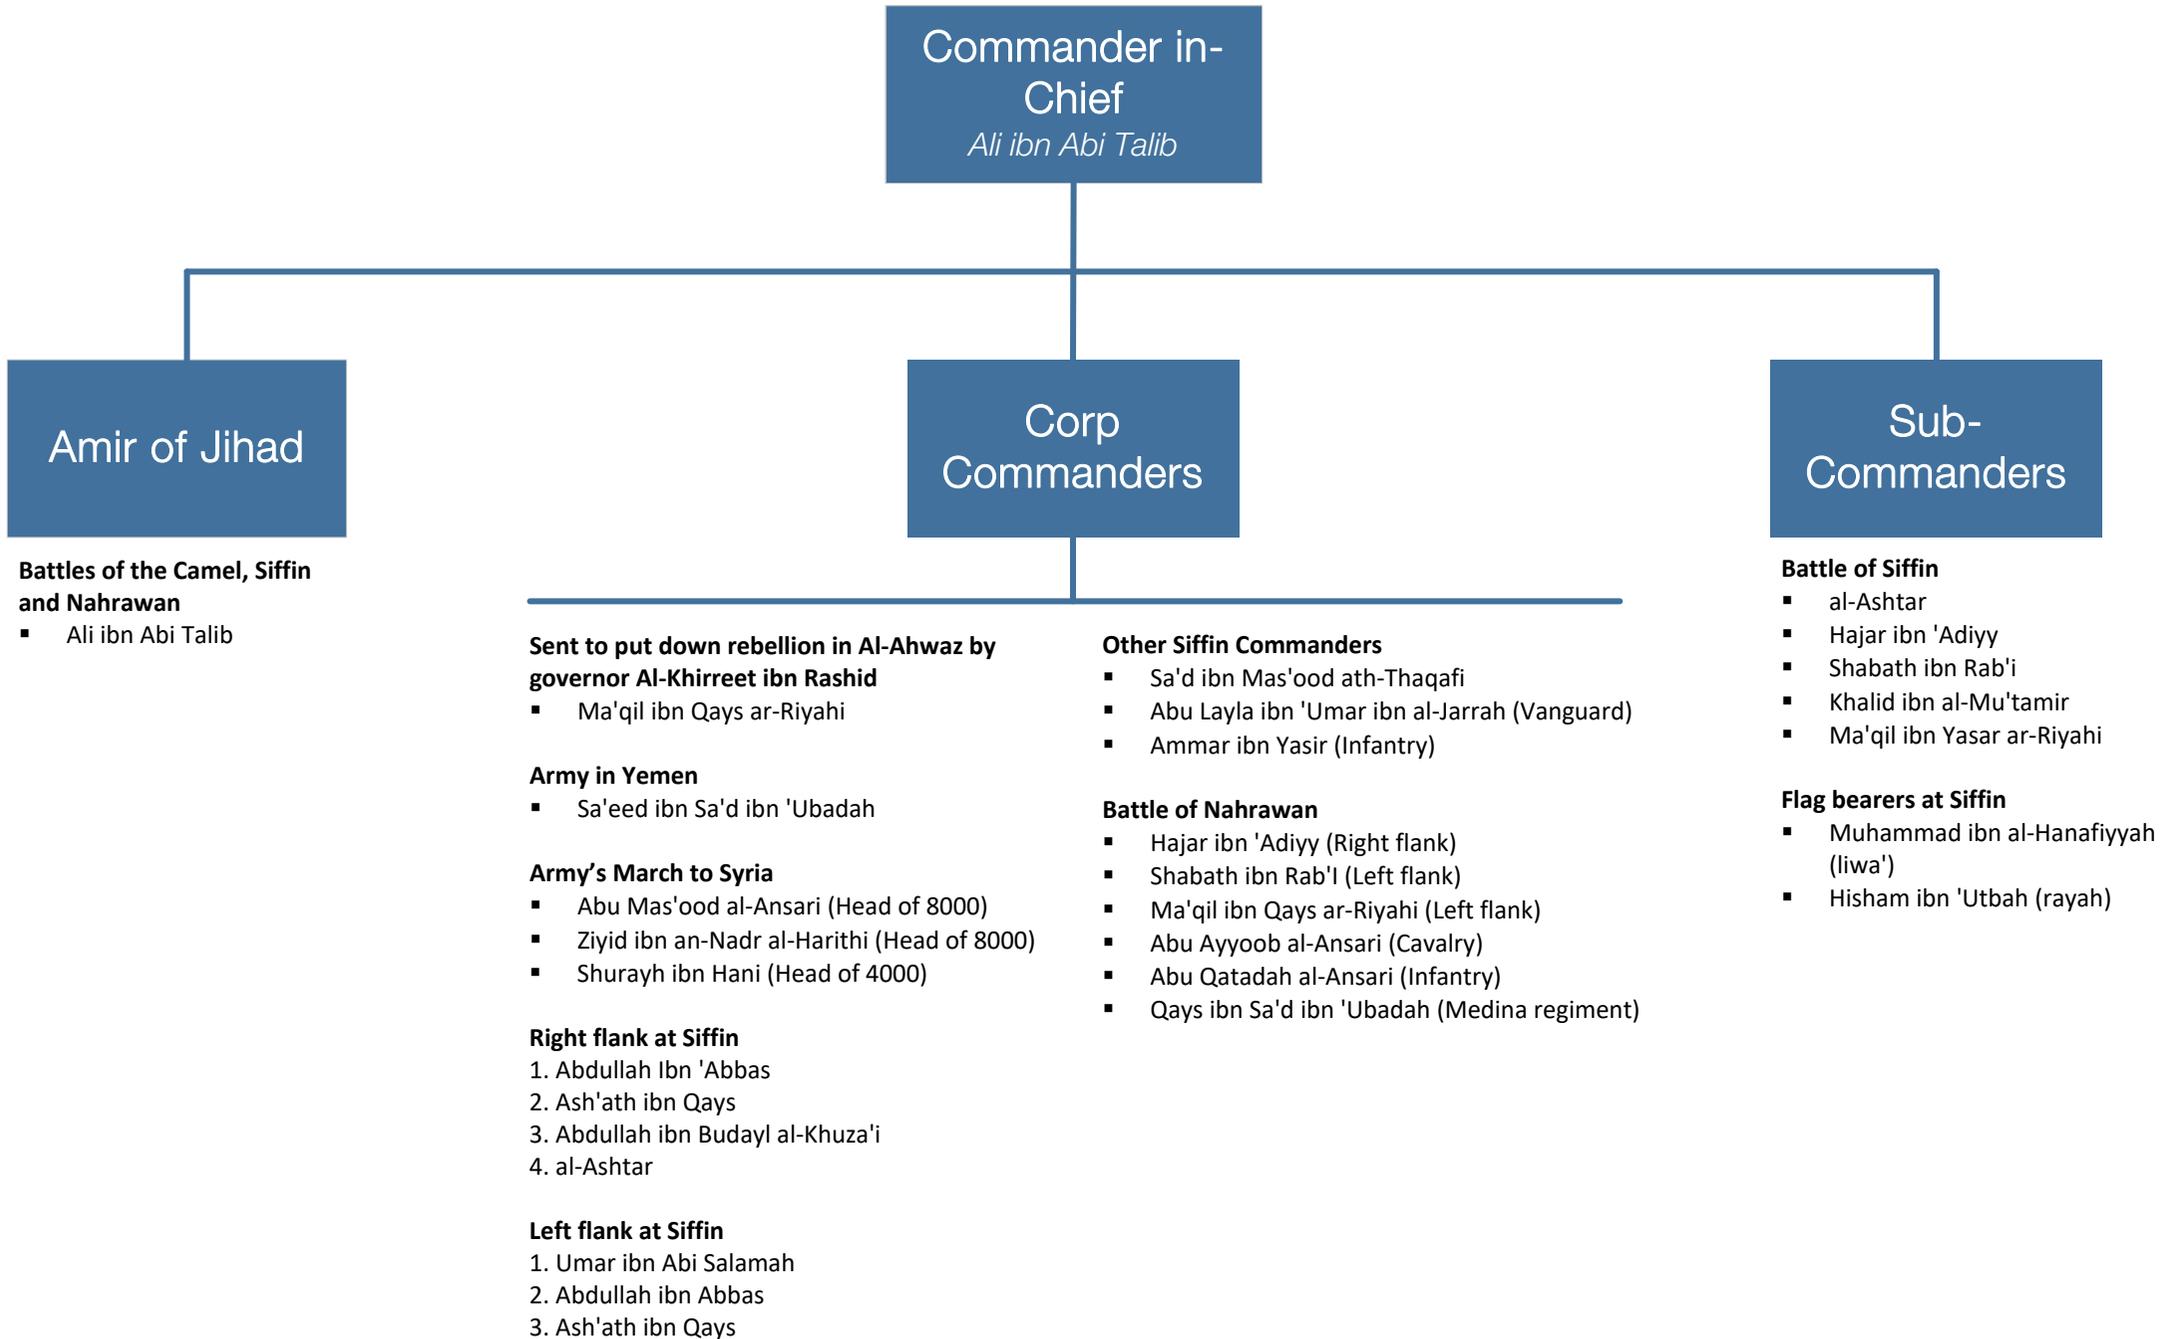

Both sides are referred to as believers and the attackers are fought until they revert to Allah’s command i.e. giving their bay’ah. Therefore Imam Ali who was the Caliph was correct that Mu’awiya and all those with him must give bay’ah and recognise his authority. Moreover, there is an explicit hadith which mentions that Ammar bin Yasir one of Ali’s commanders at Siffin will be killed by the rebellious group i.e. Muawiyah. The Prophet ﷺ said, “May Allah be merciful to Ammar. He will be killed by a rebellious aggressive group.”⁷³⁶

Mu'awiya never claimed himself as Caliph but withheld his bay'ah until Ali had handed over the assassins of the previous Caliph Uthman. Ali said give me bay'ah and then I can deal with the assassins of Uthman. This dispute culminated in the Battle of Siffin and after Ali accepted arbitration with Mu'awiya, another group broke away from Ali's army called the Khawarij (Kharijites). Imam Ali sent Abdullah ibn Abbas to debate with them and 2000 returned and recognised Ali's authority. The others that remained were fought and defeated at the Battle of Nahrawan. Some of the Khawarij after the battle wanted revenge and Ibn Maljam al-Muradi managed to assassinate Imam Ali in Kufa.

What is clear from all these battles is that the fighting was not for punishment, rather it was for the rebels to reunify with the state, and give their bay'ah which is their citizenship contract with the Caliph. This is similar to the Ridda Wars which Abu Bakr fought.

9. Spread of Islam

After the assassination of Uthman the Islamic conquests halted. This is one of the consequences of internal discord which we have witnessed throughout Islamic history. Before Salahudeen Ayyubi could expel the crusaders, he had to deal with the Fatimid state which had separated from the Abbasid Caliphate and claimed itself as a Caliphate in Egypt. Once Salahudeen abolished the Fatimid state and reunited Egypt with the Abbasid's he could focus his efforts on the crusaders. The crusaders were then finally defeated by Salahudeen at the Battle of Hittin.

When the ruler of Byzantine Emperor saw that Mu'awiyah was preoccupied with fighting Ali, he marched to some Muslim territory with a large number of troops, hoping to gain control of it. Mu'awiyah wrote to him, saying: 'By Allah, if you do not give up and go back to your own country, Oh cursed one, I shall reconcile with my cousin against you, and I shall drive you from all of your land and leave you no room on earth, vast as it is.' At that point, the Byzantine Emperor got scared and refrained from fighting, and he sent a message asking for a truce.⁷⁷⁴

The Islamic conquests only resumed after the peace deal was struck with al-Hasan and Mu'awiya became the Caliph and the Caliphate became united again.

The Caliphate of al-Hasan ibn Ali

2. Biography

Profile

The Prophet ﷺ referred to him as a leader (sayyid). Al-Hasan was a natural leader, scholar and soldier. He combined forbearance, tolerance and self-control making him an exemplary ruler. Although he was the grandson of the Prophet ﷺ he did not abuse this connection. Once while in the marketplace a shopkeeper lowered the price for him so al-Hasan gave up buying the goods and said, “I do not like to benefit from my connection with the Messenger of Allah in trivial ways.”⁷⁷⁶

Period of the Caliphate

Rightly Guided Caliphate

Ibn Katheer said, ‘The evidence that he was one of the Rightly-Guided Caliphs is the hadith which we narrated in Dala il an-Nubuwwah via Safeenah, the freed slave of the Messenger of Allah ﷺ, according to which he said: “The caliphate after me will be for thirty years.” The thirty years were only completed by the caliphate of al-Hasan ibn ‘Ali.’⁷⁷⁷

The Messenger of Allah ﷺ said: “Al-Hasan and Al-Husain are the chiefs of the youth of Paradise.”⁷⁷⁸

During the Islamic State of the Prophet ﷺ and the Caliphates of Abu and Bakr, al-Hasan was still a young man so didn't participate directly in any of the functions of the state. However, as one of Ahlu-Bait he was close to all the senior sahaba who were the rulers and commanders at this time. He learnt from them and gained skills which he later applied when he was Caliph.

Ruling experience gained during the Caliphate of Uthman:

- Part of the North Africa Campaign⁷⁷⁹
- Caliph's personal guard during the occupation of Medina⁷⁸⁰

Ruling experience gained during the Caliphate of Ali:

- Executive Assistant⁷⁸¹
- Shura⁷⁸²
- Commander of right flank at Battle of the Camel⁷⁸³

3. Bay'ah Contract

Although Hasan was the son of the previous Caliph this was not Ali's intent to establish hereditary rule which Mu'awiya did when he appointed Yazid.

It was said to 'Ali ibn Abi Talib: 'Why don't you appoint a successor to rule us?' He answered: 'The Messenger of Allah ﷺ did not appoint a successor, so why should I appoint a successor? But if Allah wills good for the people, He will unite them after my death under the leadership of the best of them, as He united them after the death of their Prophet ﷺ under the leadership of the best of them.'⁷⁸⁴

This clearly establishes free choice and meritocracy as the basis of choosing the Caliph not familial ties.

Al-Hasan ibn Ali: Government Structure

5. Provinces (Wiliyaat)

Al-Hasan was only in office for a short period of time so didn't make many administrative changes or change the governors. He approved of all the governors of his father Imam Ali.

6. Spread of Islam

As mentioned earlier the Islamic conquests halted after the assassination of Uthman. The motivation for al-Hasan signing the peace treaty with Mu'awiya and abdicating the Caliphate to him was to restart the conquests and deal with other territories which had taken advantage of the situation and rebelled in the East. Al-Hasan said, "I have been thinking of going to Madinah to settle there and yielding (the caliphate) to Mu'awiya. The turmoil has gone on for too long, blood has been shed, ties of kinship have been severed, the roads have become unsafe, and the borders have been neglected."⁷⁹²

There is a lesson here today that without a Caliphate, Muslim blood is shed with impunity and all aspects of life and society are being neglected.

Once Mu'awiya became Caliph the conquests resumed on three fronts:

1. Byzantine Empire
2. North Africa
3. Sijistan, Khorasan and Transoxiana in the East which had rebelled

Mu'awiya outlined his foreign policy when he said, "Tighten the stranglehold on the Byzantines so that you will be able to gain control over other nations."⁷⁹³

Appendix A: The 75 who gave the Second Pledge of Al-Aqaba

The names of those Ansar who gave bay'ah at the second pledge of al-Aqaba are etched in history as the first to support the Messenger of Allah ﷺ and pledge allegiance to him as the leader of the first Islamic State, an event which marks the beginning of the Hijri calendar in Islam.

Those who pledged did so not for any material benefit or position. They pledged their support in order to seek the pleasure of Allah (Most High) alone, which is why the Messenger ﷺ said to them, “And you will have Paradise.”

After the Messenger ﷺ arrived in Medina we continue to hear these names playing a key role in upholding the state and expanding it throughout the Arabian Peninsula. Those who lived after the Messenger ﷺ passed away, continued to play a prominent role in the state assisting the Rightly Guided Caliphs and later the Umayyads.

Dr Ali Muhammad As-Sallaabee comments on this.

When one studies the lives of the Muslims who made the Second Pledge of Al-'Aqabah, one finds that, out of a total of seventy-three of them, about one-third were martyred either during the Prophet's lifetime or after his ﷺ death. Also, one finds that about half of them participated in all of the Prophet's battles; and that almost all of them - about seventy of them - participated in the Battle of Badr.

Based on these numbers, we can clearly see that the Ansaar fulfilled the covenants that they made with Allah and His Messenger ﷺ. Some of them were martyred, and the rest that lived on participated in leading the Muslims to the many victories they enjoyed during the early golden years of Islam. Theirs were souls that were ready to sacrifice everything, seeking no reward in return other than Paradise. No one after them came even close to their achievements and their willingness to make sacrifices for the cause of Islam.⁷⁹⁴

There is a lesson here for the people of nusra (support) today that they have a unique opportunity to follow in the footsteps of the Ansar and support the establishment of a new Islamic State and thus becoming one of the sabiqun. Here are their names...⁷⁹⁵
